COASTAL GALE MOVES NORTH; OVER 28 DEAD

PROPERTY DAMAGE OVER 30 MILLION IN FIVE STATES

(By The Associated Press)
The tropical hurricane that lashed the northeastern states continued on its northward path off the Atlantic coast last (Friday) night, headed for south-eastern Newfoundland.

The weather bureau reported that the storm was decreasing in intensity, but still was accompanied by gales over an area about 200 miles in diameter. At least 28 persons lost their lives as the hurricane roared across five states Thursday night, causing property damage estimated at more than $30,000,000.

About 3,000 Evacuated
The deaths and much of the damage was centered in the New York, New England area where a similar storm on September 21, 1938, killed almost 500 persons and wrecked property valued at $500,000,000.

Harold P. Gilmour, acting director of disaster service for the Red Cross in the north Atlantic area, reported that approximately 3,000 persons had been evacuated by the Red Cross from their damaged homes in the wake of the hurricane.

Areas hardest hit, he said, were Monmouth county, N. J., New Bedford, Mass., and Long Beach, Long Island.

Many communities in the Long Island and New England storm area remained without public utilities or communications, but no serious health problems had been reported to state agencies of the Red Cross.

Crops Ruined
Uprooted trees, snapped power lines, ruined crops, flooded streets those were the aftermath of the 35-mile an hour gale that lashed more than 1,500 miles of coastline with torrential rain. More than 5,000 persons were evacuated from their homes and some 300,000 telephones in the stricken area were out of service.

New Jersey, where two persons were killed and damage to crops and seashore properties exceeded $20,000,000 appealed for federal aid as rescue workers strove to reach hard-hit areas of Long Beach Island.

Thirteen persons died, most of them by electrocution, in metropolitan New York and Long Island, although the city escaped the hurricane's full fury. Store windows were shattered and subways flooded in Manhattan. Parts of Long Island, fayed by a 95-mile gale, still were without electric lights.

Hurricane Heads Seaward
Connecticut, its multi-million dollar tobacco and fruit crops ravaged for the second time in eight years, counted four dead. Three deaths were reported in Massachusetts, where the hurricane leveled fruit trees, battered shore properties and cut communications to islands including Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard. An additional death was reported as the 100-mile-wide gale skirted Maine.

New England's total damage approached $10,000,000, half of it in New Bedford, Mass.

The Canadian Meteorological Bureau said the hurricane, born

HITLER'S WESTWALL TOPPLED—American infantry, supported by tanks, won one of the greatest victories of the European invasion Friday when they broke through the main German Siegfried line on a wide front east of Aachen. The famed Nazi westwall was found to be weakly defended in some places.

Allies Cut Gothic Line; Axis Defense Totters At Rimini

BY NOLAND NORGARD
Rome, Sept. 15 (AP)—The last German defense lines south of Rimini wavered under the shock of a terrific British army onslaught today as Allied troops breached the Gothic line with the capture of the strategic San Savino-Coriano ridge.

British and Canadian troops reached within a mile of the Rimini airfield and within four of Rimini, Adriatic doorway to the Po valley and the industrial heart of Italy.

Canadian infantrymen and tanks stormed across the Marano river. The nearby town of Coriano was captured. Air forces of the Mediterranean command gave strong support to the ground troops, hammering enemy frontline positions.

Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans along the entire Eighth army Adriatic front. The capture of the 7,000-yard San Savino-Coriano ridge wiped out a formidable obstacle to the advance on the Po valley. British infantry and tanks executed a bold encircling movement which surrounded, killed or captured most of the 289th Grenadier regiment of the 98th German division holding the ridge.

Vengeful Greek and French troops joined the general assault with the Greeks blasting at the defenses of San Lorenzo, about five miles south of Rimini. Heavy counterattacks were repulsed with severe losses of men and tanks for the Germans.

With Canadian forces firmly established on the north shore of the Marano river, the last water barrier before Rimini and the Po

QUEBEC VICTORY TALKS FINISHED

Roosevelt And Churchill Will Meet Newsman At Noon Today

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Quebec, Sept. 15 (AP)—A joint news conference at noon tomorrow will draw the curtain on the eighth and perhaps final "war" conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and clear the way for future and probably imminent deliberations on cracking German economic and political power.

The military phases of the Quebec conference already are over. Plans have been approved and sealed for capitalizing on unexpectedly quick and decisive victories in the Pacific and for grinding Japan into submission.

Necessarily the president and prime minister must keep silent, in tomorrow's press conference, on the precise nature of those plans. But apparently, for the first time, they have been based on specific commitments that Britain will siphon tremendous forces into the Far East once the German military machine has been wrecked.

BATTLE RAGES OVER BRIDGES INTO WARSAW

RUSSIAN AND POLISH TROOPS CAPTURE 11 LOCALITIES

BY W. W. HERCHER
London, Saturday, Sept. 16 (AP)—Russian and Polish troops captured 11 localities on the east bank of the Vistula river north of fallen Praga yesterday as other units fought for the bridges leading across the river into besieged Warsaw.

Moscow dispatches said it was believed that Red army units already had carried the fight into the Polish capital by crossing the broad river, but the daily Soviet communique told only of the extension of Russian holdings along the east bank above the Praga suburb.

New Offensive In Latvia

Berlin said the Russians had begun a big new offensive on a curving 150-mile front in Latvia and Estonia, hurling 40 divisions of upwards of 400,000 men, into a final effort to crush trapped German forces in the Baltic states. The attacks ranged from Bauska, 37 miles south of Riga in Latvia, eastward and northeastward to both sides of Valga in Estonia. The German broadcast said, Moscow's communique did not mention that area—a usual procedure when Soviet drives are getting under way.

In southern Poland other Soviet forces fighting toward Lwow pass leading into Slovakia captured nine localities, including Lisko, 10 miles southeast of Sanok and 18 miles from the Czechoslovak border, the communique said. Farther west Soviet units were reported to have already crossed into Slovakia near the Dukla pass.

In Transylvania the Russians drove to within 23 miles of the big German-Hungarian stronghold of Targu-Mures with the capture of Sovata. More than 40 localities were taken in Hungarian-annexed Transylvania, the communique said, including Toplita, 87 miles north of Brasov on

Michigan Pays Off All Bonded Debts

Lansing, Sept. 15 (AP)—Michigan will be free of bonded debt November 15, the state treasury department reported today as it began payment of the second from the last installment of state highway bonds.

The bonds falling due today have $2,203,000 value, and the November issue will have value of $3,433,000. The original highway bond issue was $50,000,000.

State Treasurer D. Hale Brake also announced he was calling for bids for sale on September 26 of $626,132.49 of municipal bonds, the state's portfolio which have market value below par. Unless some remain unsold after the sealed-bid sale, Brake said he expected this would be the last sale of less-than-par-value securities by the state, with the exception of bonds of the city of Inkster.

Brake said the state owns the entire issue of $376,000 of Inkster bonds and there is no market for them.

The fourth anniversary of the passage of the National draft law will be marked September 16 and Brig. Gen. Le Roy Pearson, state draft director, estimated about 600,000 Michigan men will have attained the status of veterans before the war ends. He said their home coming will provide a big problem for civilians to handle.

Pearson reminded the 5,000 volunteer workers of Michigan's 192 local draft boards that they still have a responsibility to fill manpower needs of the services and to help discharged veterans. He commended the boards for meeting the manpower drain without disrupting war productions, and said he hoped the reverse process of speeding servicemen into private life can be accomplished as efficiently.

Pearson told the volunteers that under federal law, the system is the agency designated to protect discharged veterans seeking reemployment and is charged with finding new jobs for veterans. Pearson directed all local draft boards to assist any community program helping veterans.

Finnish-Swedish Frontier Closed

Stockholm, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Germans closed the northern part of the Finnish-Swedish frontier tonight, it was announced officially here.

German troops told Swedish frontier guards that they would prevent any Finnish refugees from crossing into Sweden and they stopped all contact between Swedes and Finns across the border.

Yanks Sweeping Toward Cologne On Broad Front

BY WILLIAM F. BONI
Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Saturday, Sept. 16 (AP)—The U. S. First army smashed the Siegfried line at its strongest point east of the German gateway bastion of Aachen today and in a mighty sweep hurtled down the last 30 miles toward the great industrial city of Cologne and the Rhine.

Climaxing a grand assault that began Thursday, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' infantry battered through the main belt of pill boxes and dragon teeth concrete tank barriers on which Hitler relied to keep invaders from his source of military strength in the Rhineland.

Enemy Reels Backward
While Hitler's homeland defenses crashed, his last stand in northern France was broken by the fall of Nancy—once Nazi headquarters in France—to Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army tanks, which raced on 10 to 15 miles eastward as the enemy reeled in retreat back to the Rhine on a 30-mile front.

TRICKY SALVAGE JOB COMPLETED

Carrier Raised By Roen Towed To Sturgeon Bay For Repairs

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 15 (AP)—The salvaged steamer George W. Humphrey, raised from the bottom of the Straits of Mackinac in what was considered one of the great accomplishments of Great Lakes salvaging, was being towed tonight to Sturgeon Bay, Wis., for repairs and new fittings.

The million dollar vessel, sunk more than a year ago in a collision with the steamer Clemson, was raised out of 77 feet of water by John E. Roen.

Before Roen, who was paid by the United States government to rid the navigation channel of the sunken ship, began salvage operations several months ago, he was told that the 5,400-ton steel hull could not be salvaged.

Disregarding the warning, Roen gathered a group of daring and experienced divers and workmen, and employing his own broad knowledge of salvaging and some of the principles used in righting the USS Lafayette, formerly the Normandy, he succeeded in salvaging the vessel and now plans to use the freighter in the Great Lakes shipping service next season. The job cost him approximately $400,000.

The Clemson stove a hole 21 by 22 feet into the Humphrey's hull and ice last winter smashed the pilot house and cabin and crushed the stack. The hull, however, appears sound and the boilers are functioning. The hole has been patched temporarily.

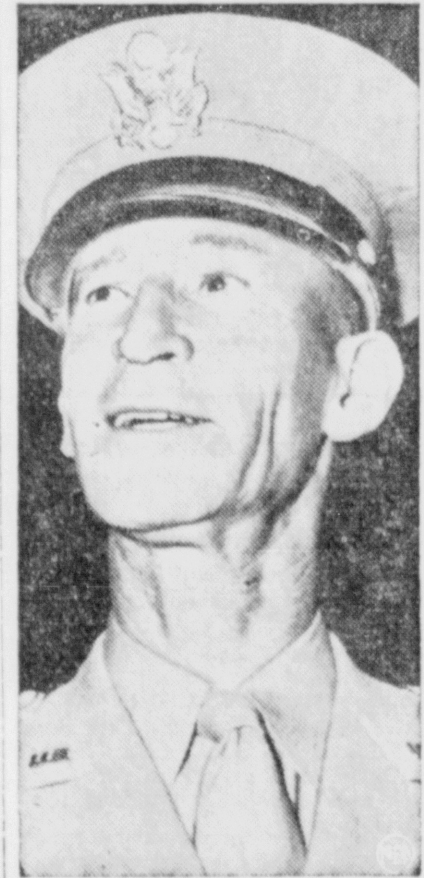

YUGOSLAVS TAKE TOLL

London, Sept. 15 (AP)—Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation, announced tonight that 24,000 German and satellite troops had been killed and 11,900 captured by his Partisans in the first ten days of September.

and shooting all around him. He said that whatever kind of shell it was made a terrific racket when it came through the plane and struck him.

The little hole in the side of the plane through which he had trusted his hand—we thought that had been torn when the plane crashed. But actually the pilot had made it himself during those eight days trying to tear a hole big enough to get out.

FINNISH FORCES FIGHT GERMANS

Most Of Hogland Island Regained; War May Be Declared On Nazis

BY ROBERT N. STURDEVANT
Stockholm, Sept. 15 (AP)—German invaded Finland's strategic and well-fortified island of Suursaari (Hogland) in the Gulf of Finland early today, the Finns fighting back and meeting most of the island by nightfall, found themselves virtually at war with their former Nazi brothers-in-arms.

According to latest reports to Finnish circles here, a fairly strong Finnish garrison retained nearly all lost ground in a day of fighting, leaving the Germans tonight in control of one or two hills on the rocky island, which the Germans apparently attempted to seize to help protect the rear of their Baltic positions against Russian attack from the sea.

The German attack was made on the final day given the Nazis to clear out of Finland under the Finnish armistice agreement with Russia, and it was possible Finland would now declare war on Germany and become the third former co-belligerent of the Nazis to turn its guns against them.

Parliament, which must take the step of declaring war, held an eight-minute session today and will meet again Saturday morning. There was no announcement on today's brief session.

Battleship Nevada Back From Invasion Unscarred By War

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—The battleship Nevada, veteran of the First World War and a Pearl Harbor casualty, was berthed at a north river pier today, unscarred after participation in the invasion of Europe.

Capt. Powell M. Rhea, of Fayetteville, Ark., said that the Nevada, one of the navy's oldest battleships now in service, was straddled frequently by enemy fire during its D-day support of the Normandy invasion off Cherbourg but that the closest shell landed 20 feet away.

Both men praised the spirit of the crew while under fire of German shore batteries. On and after D-day, Rhea said, the Nevada's men were at their battle stations for 80 consecutive hours. The Nevada was the first battleship to return here from the invasion scene, the Navy said.

Naval Depot Blast In Nebraska Kills Three; 56 Injured

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—Three persons were killed and 56 others were injured today in an explosion at the naval munitions depot, Hastings, Neb., the Ninth District headquarters at Great Lakes, Ill., announced.

The dead were one enlisted Coast Guardsman and two negro Navy enlisted men. Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of the next of kin by the Navy department.

The injured included one officer, civilian employees at the depot and both white and negro enlisted personnel.

District headquarters said the casualty count was based on "the latest information available."

Property damage included destruction of one building.

LAST BARRIER TO PHILIPPINE AREA INVADIED

ONE LANDING MADE 350 MILES FROM MINDANAO

BY RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor
Twin drives for bases from which to unleash invasion of the Philippines went well today for the Americans. Marines carved out a mile and one-half long beachhead on the key island of the Palau against furious opposition by 8,000 Japanese and another Yank force achieved all objectives within a few hours on Morotai in the Halmaheras.

In a communique last night, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported that the heroes of Guadalcanal, Marines of the First division, already are moving toward the main airfield of the Palau, on Peleliu Island in the south part of that group. Possession of that airfield would provide a bomber base 215 miles east of Davao, southern Philippines.

First Losses Light
Japanese broadcasts earlier had said the Palau invaders were repulsed with heavy losses but last night's communique listed initial losses as light. However, the Japanese were putting up a stiff fight, even throwing tanks into their counterattacks.

The landings on Palau, one of Japan's best Pacific bases, were preceded by terrific naval bombardments and blistering raids by carrier-based planes from Adm. William Halsey's Third fleet. Thickly wooded areas, however, shielded the Japanese defenders from the hurricane of hot steel.

The American landings on heavily wooded Morotai Island, northernmost of the Moluccas, took the Japanese by surprise and were accomplished with very light losses to ground forces. Supporting naval and air units suffered no losses at all.

Air Bases Valuable
Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who went ashore in a landing boat, told his troops that their position was secure; that they now stood on the last barrier before the Philippines; that the invasion threatened all of Japan's conquests in the East Indies and her armies there totaling some 200,000 men.

Penetration of Japan's Halmahera-Philippines line of defense will give the Yanks air bases from which fighter planes can cover bombers in heavy attacks against the Archipelago that Nippon has held since the fall of Bataan and Corregidor.

In China's far-flung fighting areas the fortunes of war seemed but were underscored by a major Allied accomplishment in the Yunnan theater near the Burma border. There Chinese forces after annihilating the Japanese garrison at Tengchung effected juncture with Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's army inside Burma. The intervening territory is wild and mountainous.

Thus another link was forged in the Allied campaign to reopen a land supply line into China for the movement of war materials that would enable the Chinese to throw large, properly equipped armies against the Japanese invaders.

China Front Wavers
However, on another Yunnan front reinforced Japanese troops

MILK TRUCK IS HIT BY TRAIN

Machine Stalls On RR Crossing At Ford River Switch

The northbound C&NW 400 streamliner passenger train struck the rear end of a milk truck driven by Arthur Lantage, Escanaba, Route One, Thursday evening, and was delayed 20 minutes into Escanaba.

Lantage stalled the truck on the crossing near Ford River Switch, as the streamliner approached. Unable to get the machine off the track before the passenger train arrived, Lantage jumped off the truck and escaped injury. The rear end of the milk truck was damaged. The passenger train was undamaged.

captured a Chinese position close to Lunging, astride the Burma Road, and the fighting in that sector was described as "savage." Chinese troops broke into Weichow port city of Chukiang Province, 225 miles south of Shanghai, and engaged the Japanese in street fighting.

In southern Kwangtung Province the Japanese captured Lim-kong, highway center.

Nippon forces were within 65 miles of Kweilin, Kwangsi Province, a key point in China's southern defenses and an important American airbase.

The Japanese reached the outer defenses of Paoching, 63 miles west of Hengyang.

SURPRISE MOVE SCORES

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Saturday, Sept. 16 (AP)—All objectives on Morotai Island, northernmost of the Halmahera group, have been seized, headquarters announced today.

Morotai was invaded yesterday in a surprise amphibious move representing a 300-mile leap from Dutch New Guinea.

An airfield was seized on the island and construction work has been started on new airfields from which to bomb the Philippines. Davao is 375 miles northward.

A carrier-borne air cover was unchallenged over Morotai, as Far Eastern air force land planes continued to neutralize all potential Japanese bases within striking distance.

Airdromes on adjacent Halmahera Island were pounded by land-based bombers, as were Nipponese bases at Ceram and on Vogelkop Peninsula of New Guinea.

This intensive bombing pinned the Japanese to the ground.

News From Men In The Service

Second Lieut. Leo Alperovitz, who is stationed somewhere in Italy with the Quartermaster Corps, has been promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant. It was learned yesterday, Lt. Alperovitz, who is the son of Mrs. Jacob Alperovitz, of 207 Ludington street, has been in the service for two years and has been overseas for over a year.

In an appeal to folks back home Pfc. Clyde Anderson, serving with the Marines in the Pacific, writes in part:

"When mail call is sounded everyone, no matter what he is doing, will run as fast as possible to the mail clerk. Even though he is tired and his feet are sore, he will accelerate his legs at very high speed. As the names are called you can almost hear the thumping hearts, and can notice the eager eyes as they wait for that letter from loved ones back home.  I wish you folks back home could witness that famous mail call.  So come on you folks, keep pitching that mail. Sit down and write that letter today  or send that snapshot he has asked for."

Information from Army service forces headquarters indicates that Sgt. Gerald L. Eis, of Army air forces, is returning to this country after 30 months overseas in the Caribbean theater of operations. He is expected at Fort Sheridan, Ill., about Sept. 15 and will immediately continue on to Escanaba to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eis, 221 North Eleventh street. Sgt. Eis' furlough is in keeping with the rotation plan of granting furloughs to men who have been serving overseas.

forces hemming it in on all sides and pouring artillery fire into its buildings.

The line was shredded along a front of at least 10 miles, for that distance south of Aachen the German border town of Lammersdorf was captured.

To their surprise, the hard-hitting doughboys found some of the famed main defenses weakly manned, and some were only fakes, said Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead in reporting the long-awaited breakthrough.

Armed with flame-throwers and dynamic engineers teamed with infantry both in the breakthrough area and to the south at Prum to clear a path for tanks and self-propelled artillery supporting covering fire.

Patton On Move
Patton's armor was on the move again in all its old-time reckless, headlong fashion after ten days of stubborn fighting on the Moselle River and south of Nancy, said a front dispatch.

Ranging out as far as 15 miles east of the city the vanguards ran into nothing but scattered resistance.

This sweep threw the Germans defending Metz—last important city held in France by the Germans—into peril and they were faced with possible encirclement or a retreat to the rich Saar industrial basin 20 miles away.

As the U. S. Seventh army closed on Belfort at the extreme southern end of the front, it was announced that it had been placed under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's western front command.

This four U. S. armies—the mightiest striking force ever welded together in American history—were assembled on the battlefields of Europe for the showdown struggle with Germany.

Devers In Command
It also was announced that Lt. Gen. Jacob Devers, deputy supreme commander in the Mediterranean, had been placed in command of the Sixth army group on the western front, and it was presumed the Seventh army was included.

The outer works of the Siegfried line were found less formidable than many obstacles smashed on the Normandy beaches, a front dispatch said, and there were indications the Germans were in fighting retreat to a second line of defense on the Rhine.

Deepest penetration into the Reich was north of the fortified city of Trier, which itself echoed to the shots of doughboys fighting in the outskirts after braving hot machinegun and rifle fire to blast a maze of pill boxes.

Thirty-five miles to the north-west tanks and self-propelled artillery rumbled up to the edge of Prum—supposedly a fortress anchoring the main Siegfried defense zone—shattering concrete tank barriers, braving artillery and anti-tank fire and routing the Germans from pill boxes with bayonet, dynamite and flame-thrower.

On the south, the last enemy stand in northern France was wilting in the fire of the U. S. Third army, which captured the Moselle River stronghold of Nancy, capital of German-annexed Lorraine, with only the whizz of sniper bullets contesting the entry.

The British in northern Belgium were cleaning up pockets left on a field of slaughter between the Albert and Escourt Canals after seizing the only bridge left intact by the Germans over the Escourt at Degroot—an enemy tactical error that sealed his own fate.

On the seaward front, the Canadians were closing in all along the Leopold Canal north of the Belgian city of Brugge, but yielded one bridgehead in the face of intense artillery and mortar shelling.

Far away to the west on the tip of the Breton Peninsula the battle for Brest roared to a climax with the Americans fighting forward street by street as the waterfront rocked to German demolitions.

The Canadians moving up the western Dutch frontier near the coast were fighting to clear the south bank of the Schelde River as the first step to make the great port of Antwerp, lying farther downstream, usable.

There was no report of progress in the siege of the channel ports of Calais, Boulogne and Dunkerque.

SECRET WEAPON USED
London, Saturday, Sept. 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First U. S. Army is using secret weapons in knocking out German pill boxes and other strongpoints in the Siegfried line, it was learned today, but details are being carefully guarded.

All that can be said now is that the new weapons are being carried by assault engineers working closely with infantry, and that they have achieved considerable success.

Budapest Hammered
For the second straight night long-range Soviet bombers hammered targets at Budapest, Hungarian capital, on Thursday night. More than 35 fires amid industrial objectives were started, the bulletin said.

Northeast of Warsaw the Russians had hurled the Germans across the Narew river within 15 miles of the southern border of German East Prussia, and Moscow dispatches said that Red army units already had crossed the Narew. The communiqué, however, did not mention this sector.

Red army artillery hurled shells across the wide Vistula into German gun positions on the bluffs beyond, and the Germans also were threatened by a Russian bridgehead established on the west bank of the river 25 miles below Warsaw.

Operator Fined For Permitting Minors In Local Pool Hall

Joseph Grenier, operator of the M. J. Boyle pool hall at 813 Ludington, yesterday afternoon pleaded guilty in Justice Henry Ranguette's court to a charge of permitting minors to loiter there and paid a fine of $10 and costs. The offense occurred Sept. 4.

The fine was reduced from $25 on Grenier's pledge that he will cooperate with officers in keeping all high school students and youths under 17 out of the place in the future. Suspension of a part of the fine was recommended by Prosecutor Torval E. Strom on Grenier's pledge of cooperation.

Police Chief Michael Ettenhofer said that on Sept. 4 three boys, one 13, one 11 and one 10, were in the pool room for a couple hours. They played pool and the oldest boy spent about $2 there, the police chief said.

Bean Harvest—Six tons of yellow wax beans in three pickings were harvested from a one and one half acre field planted this year on the Omer Dupont farm, R. 1, Bark River. Due to lack of rain the crop, however, was estimated at only one half the expected yield. Normally five to six pickings are required to complete the harvest. Mr. Dupont raised the beans on contract for the Escanaba Canning company cannery at Pine Ridge. It is estimated about 90 pounds of seeds were used in planting.

Nahma

Slight Increase In Nahma Enrollment

Nahma—The Nahma Township schools opened on Tuesday September 5, with a total enrollment of 249 students. This compares very favorably with last year's enrollment which was 229. There is practically no change however in the high school enrollment up to the present time, with that of a year ago. It is quite likely that there may be a few late enrollments. The increase in enrollment is in the grades, which show a total increase of 30 students over that of last year in grades from kindergarten through the sixth. The high school shows a decrease of one in this year's initial enrollment.

Skulda Baner Wins Acclaim As Writer, Visitor In Ironwood

Ironwood—Miss Skulda Baner made her first public appearance in the old home town since she left Ironwood 14 years ago and subsequently attained fame and national acclaims as one of America's popular authors, as a guest at the Rotary club meeting this noon.

Her book "Latch String Out," depicting early days of her childhood environment has had an outstanding public acceptance.

She is now ending a summer stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peterson, upon, where she has been vacationing and assembling material for her next two books and incidentally battling a bit of hay fever. Winner of a recent $1,000 award from the University of Minnesota in recognition of her writing ability, Miss Baner is to shortly bring out a biography of her illustrious father, J. G. R. Baner, early pioneer of the Gogebie Range and a literary scholar and writer of note.

Her third book will be a romantic novel with scenes laid in the United States and Sweden and will be published by her publishing firm, Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

Miss Baner, now a resident of Milwaukee, loves the north of her early home, its hills and woods—and pasties. She has traveled widely both in the United States and abroad and on one of her recent trips to New York and the east was, according to press clippings, enthusiastically received and winned and dined with other celebrities of the writing profession. She was the subject of interesting comment by leading columnists in metropolitan newspapers in many cities.

She has been totally blind for the past several years, yet, entirely uncomplainingly, she draws from the scrap-books and letters to her readers and listeners. She is charming in her appearance and a fluent and brilliant speaker. It is understood that she will make a public appearance in Ironwood at a later date to lecture.

Rat Defenses Will Be Invaded Today

Today is D-day in Escanaba and an invasion army composed of 26 Boy Scouts and six city employees generally by A. V. Aronson, city engineer, and S. N. Bradford, scout executive, is conducting an all out offensive against the rodent hordes within the city.

To avoid danger of "fifth columnists" spreading the alarm the invading troops, armed with deadly squill, are deploying into strategic units and, moving simultaneously on six different fronts, are carrying the war of eradication into every alley defense line in Escanaba.

By this noon the offensive will have reached its objective and the invaders will retire, leaving behind in enemy strongholds poison bait which will remain effective for at least two days. At the end of that period it is expected that every dirty rat in town will be liquidated and the city once more liberated from an annual destruction amounting to thousands of dollars.

Herman Gessner

THE passing of Herman Gessner removes from Ludington street not only its longest continuous resident as a merchant, but a sparkplug in the business and civic life of this community, for more than a half century. To this community Herman Gessner had become more than an individual—he was an institution. And in the final years of his life the influence that he exercised and the good that he accomplished went far beyond the confines of his home community. His activities in crippled children's work and in the furtherance of the Zionist movement, particularly, he became an outstanding public character in the peninsula and the state.

Herman Gessner's life can well be said to have better typified the spirit and the opportunity of America than that of any other individual in this city. He came to America from Germany when a small boy, an unschooled immigrant. His native ability and the opportunities of free America, permitted him to build here the most successful independently owned mercantile establishment in Escanaba and to become one of the most influential men in this community.

His work in behalf of crippled children in this and other counties of the peninsula is a matter of history. His active support of every movement inaugurated in the last half century for the moral welfare and advancement of Escanaba, is an imperishable record, written in the hearts of all of those with whom he worked. His charities were many and the extent of his unselfish giving is known only to grateful recipients.

Herman Gessner was, indeed, a man of many virtues and his passing is a distinct loss to Escanaba and its people.

Vaccine for Flu

WHILE was always cause unjustifiable destruction of lives and property, the laws of compensation govern to some extent to bring out new discoveries that prove to be of peacetime benefit to man.

Latest development of this kind is the preparation of a new vaccine that promises to effectively combat two common types of influenza. For the time being, however, the supply is being used entirely for military use, but it is expected that sufficient amounts will be produced to serve the needs of civilians.

Effective against the "A" and "B" types of influenza, the vaccine was developed by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., of the University of Michigan, and Dr. James E. Salk, both members of the Army's Commission on Influenza. In the process of manufacture, living viruses of the "A" and "B" types, recovered from persons who had the disease, are injected into eggs containing developing chick embryos. The viruses are absorbed in the red blood cells of the embryo and are caused to develop and multiply.

The cultured viruses get into the fluids which surround the embryo in the egg shell. After sufficient time for development is given, these fluids are removed from the egg. The virus elements are killed by adding formaldehyde, and then the material is refined before the vaccine is prepared.

An epidemic of the flu in World War I took hundreds of lives among the armed forces and civilians in this country. Recurrence of such a calamity in the present war may be prevented by the recently announced development of an anti-influenza vaccine.

Our National Anthem

THE 130th anniversary of the writing of the national anthem was observed early Thursday morning at old Fort McHenry, where Francis Scott Key wrote the Star Spangled Banner during a bombardment of the historic fortress.

The Star Spangled Banner has been criticized on the grounds that it is hard to sing and lacks the stirring martial spirit. As a result, there have been frequent clamors for the writing of a new national anthem, which school children and also adults could sing with ease.

At the start of World War II, Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" was revived and sung to death. It is unlikely that it will see another revival. The Star Spangled Banner, however, remains always with us, like the Constitution and the other traditions that had their origin in the early history of the Republic.

Fishing Attracts 'Em

ANNOUNCEMENT of winners in the Escanaba Daily Press annual fishing contest again reveals that nice, big fish may be caught in Upper Peninsula lakes and streams.

After the war is over, this region will renew its efforts to promote the tourist business on a larger scale. Chief asset to be exploited in attracting vacationists to the Upper Peninsula will be the excellent fishing that is afforded here. Fully ninety per cent of the tourists who have come to the Upper Peninsula were interested in catching fish—trout, bass, walleyed pike and even perch. When peace returns, there will be more fishermen than ever, since millions of men in the armed forces have been trained to enjoy life in the outdoors.

While we are talking and thinking about postwar planning, we should take an inventory of our fishing resources to determine what might be done to improve them. It is time for sportsmen's clubs to become active again.

Winter Sports, Too

ANOTHER casualty of the war in this region has been the winter sports business.

There has been local participation in skiing and skating, of course, but wartime restrictions have put a damper on the efforts of northern Michigan communities and railroads to promote snow trains, carnivals and other attractions to attract winter tourists. The big ski tournaments of Iron Mountain and Ishpeming have lost stature because most of the nationally known jumpers are in the armed forces and are unable to compete.

But winter sports are due to experience a boom of unprecedented magnitude when peace returns. Training of ski troops for mountain fighting and the use of Sun Valley, Lake Placid and other famous resorts as rest camps for the men of armed forces will provide a new nucleus of winter sports enthusiasts after the war, for instance. Out of this war is developing a psychology that living is something to be enjoyed, all of which will be a potent factor in promoting greater interest in outdoor recreation in all seasons of the year.

Spring and summer fishing, fall hunting and winter sports will combine to make the Upper Peninsula the year-round vacation land of the future.

THE NORTH COUNTRY BY AIR

(Detroit Free Press)

One of the matters stressed at the Traverse City Michigan Airport Conference was that the State's two great peninsulas are no longer cut off on three sides by water.

The Great Lakes are of great pride to Michigan, and of great usefulness. They are broad highways of trade. But they are also barriers.

Now, for the first time, Sheldon Steers, director of the State Board of Aeronautics, told the conference, Michigan has a form of transportation that hurdles these barriers. There is no place that is inaccessible by air.

In the coming years the airplane will further the work of the railroad train and the automobile in linking remote areas to populated centers. Whether Michigan employs it to the full in developing the still undeveloped resources of the sparsely settled north country depends entirely upon the people of Michigan.

SATURDAY MISCELLANY

Pasadena: We frequently hear and read of a Scot wearing a "pair" of "set" of kilts. I say a man wears a kilt. What do you say?—Mrs. E. M. K.

Answer: Right. The Highlanders' plaided short skirt is a kilt. It does not come in pairs or sets, and, of course, only one kilt is worn at a time.

Binghamton: We hear two pronunciations for RODEO. Which is correct?—K.

Answer: The customary American pronunciation is: ROE-dee-oh. The Spanish pronunciation, preferred by some Americans, is: ROE-day-oh.

Los Angeles: Thanks for rebuking those who "feel badly." It makes one feel "sadly" to hear it, because it sounds so "carelessly." I hope I never make this error, for it would make me feel "regretfully."—W. F. W.

Answer: Gracias, amigo; you make me feel "finely."

Fond du Lac: I frequently read, "He dove in the water." I was taught to say "dived." Right?—M. V. G.

Answer: Right. Also, one dives "into" the water, not "in."

Hot Springs: Is it correct to speak of a "boughten" dress?—D. B.

Answer: "Boughten" is an old Americanism apparently introduced by Scot settlers. Its usage now is regarded as dialectal.

Norfolk: It irks me to hear someone say, "He spit it out."—E. R. R.

Answer: "Spit" as the past tense has some sanction as a colloquialism. But I should advise against it in serious writing or formal speech. Better say: He spat it out; he has spat it out.

Chicago: Is it ever correct to be applicable on the second syllable?—S. T. C.

Answer: No. Say: AP-lic-uh-b'l.

LAON, fortress city near Belgian border. Caution. This name does not have two syllables. The vowel sound is "ah," nasalized. Say: lah(n).

NEUPCHATEL, town southeast of Dieppe, famous for its cheeses and cider. Caution. The "t" is silent. The "eu" has a sound similar to the "u" of urn, but with no trace of "r." Say: nu-shah-TEL.

AMIENS, important city on the Somme (sum) southeast of Abbeville. The vowel sound or both syllables has the flat "a" as in "man." The "s" is silent. Say: a-MYAN(n).

World War In The Air

BY MAJOR A. P. de SEVERSKY

Now that the wings of Germany's Luftwaffe have been clipped, there is good reason to expect that Allied naval forces may soon become more active against German-held European shores. Upper Holland, Denmark, Norway and the northern coast of Germany on both sides of the Danish peninsula are wide open to our naval assault.

One of the laws of the air power age, amply demonstrated throughout this war, is that navies can no longer attack shores protected by adequate air power. The reverse of the proposition also holds true: when shores do not have a sufficient aerial shield they can be assaulted from the sea as in the old days.

Among the most significant and striking facts of the present war has been the almost complete unemployment of a battlefleet force.

At the European end of the global conflict, there have been hit-and-run raids by naval forces on a surprise basis. In the Battle of the Atlantic, surface forces operated against the submarine menace, but always at distances safely beyond the reach of the German air force. For the rest, naval strength was swung into action—in the invasion of Africa and more recently in the invasion of Normandy—primarily as a means of transportation, either under an umbrella of air power or after enemy aviation had been neutralized.

—EVEN TIRPITZ ESCAPED—

The point is that direct, bold naval offensive against enemy coasts or against opposing navies, such as the lone Tirpitz, though constantly mauled by carrier-based planes, thus far has escaped the broadsides of the British battleships. Although the Allies possessed a virtual monopoly of sea power in the Atlantic, we could not approach Fortress Europe until we had wrested aerial superiority over the "fortress."

In the Pacific theatre, the war began with the elimination of massed American naval forces at Pearl Harbor, the sinking of British battleships Prince of Wales and Repulse, the fall of once-powerful naval bastions like Hong Kong, Singapore and Corregidor—all succumbing to what was then the superior air power of the Japanese. The major attempts of the Japanese Navy to function—in actions such as those off Midway—were stopped by our air power, and since then Jap naval forces have been out of the picture. Our own Navy has operated increasingly, but only where we could bring to bear clearly superior air strength.

To airmen it seems quite plain that this is the last human conflict in which surface navies will have any prominent role to play. Even in this war, we have always believed that Germany could be brought to its knees by direct strategic air offensive. But those in control of our military destinies were deeply committed to a surface struggle, on sea as well as on land. Hence naval forces have absorbed a major share of the national war effort, a share incommensurate with their actual secondary role.

The naval claim has always been that it is essential to maintain a powerful fleet in being. It is a strange claim when the unprecedented naval might is piled up without abatement against an enemy devoid of sea power—as in Germany's case—since there is great danger that this colossal investment might remain forever unemployed.

But now that the Luftwaffe has been curbed, and the approach to the enemy shores has become feasible, we might just as well throw this accumulated naval might into some sort of action against Germany. In that way some tangible returns on the huge investment in naval force could be obtained before the European struggle is over.

—LIKE HOARDING RUBLES—

We can hardly be too extravagant in using this naval equipment since battlefleets after this war will be obsolete anyhow. There is no point in hoarding them. When I watch the continued accumulation of surface naval force at a time when it is losing military validity, I am reminded of those who out of habit hoarded Czarist rubles when the revolution which nullified the value of the ruble was upon them. Even thus the revolution in war-making brought about by air power is nullifying the functions of navies. They should be "spent" while they have purchasing value.

Recently, in referring to forthcoming operations against Japan proper, suggestions were voiced for using aircraft carriers to provide fighter escorts for our bombardment aviation. Such tactics could readily be tested out in Europe. When our bombers attack coastal areas and great German harbors, we might provide them with fighter defense from carriers. The experiment could be undertaken with relatively small risks, since distances are much shorter than in the Pacific, and land-based fighters from France can come to the rescue in emergencies.

In this fashion much could be learned which would be helpful in the projected offensive against the Jap-held Chinese mainland and Japan proper.

As a matter of fact, it seems strange that Anglo-American naval might has been so inactive recently despite the reduced German air potential. Can it be that the bitter experience of the British naval forces in their early tangles with German air power has left a sediment of doubt and timidity?

I think not. Personally I should be surprised if the inert Allied sea power were suddenly activated and the force tied up in navies were added to the total knockout blow against Germany.

Good Morning!

GUARANTEE BOOM—If you are a confirmed duck hunter you will be among those who confirmed duck hunters that, at 6:11 a. m. September 20, will welcome the opening of the season with a blast of gunfire in the vicinity of Portage Point. If you are not a confirmed duck hunter you will be amused nevertheless at the predicament of the local conservation officers last year.

The opening of the duck season at the appointed minute is usually signaled by the boom of a small cannon (or maybe it's a big cannon) set off by the conservation officers. This is done to prevent some duck hunter with a faulty timepiece opening up a second or so ahead of schedule and scaring up the ducks before the other hunters get a shot.

Well, last year the conservation officers got everything set for the cannon boom—but no boom. They hadn't kept their powder dry.

"This year the powder's dry," we tested it," says D. H. Raass, district conservation supervisor. "So the hunters should wait for the signal to give everyone a chance."

From this corner one wonders: If one gun-shot scares the ducks up ahead of schedule, why the boom of a cannon won't drive them up before the shooting starts? Or maybe the boys will be all cocked and primed. If so the blast will be like the shot at Concord—heard 'round the world.

IT WON'T TAKE—Petty Officer 2/c Kenneth Collins of the United States Navy, and who has been fighting the Japs in the Southwest Pacific for a year, sends his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Collins, a sample of Japanese stupidity. It is a Jap propaganda leaflet dropped on the Yanks from a Nip plane, and is designed to make the American boys fold up like a tired accordion.

The leaflet is the cheapest kind of cheap paper. On the front is a highly colored conception of what the Japs think the American family looks like. There is a painted hussy of a mother, and in front of her a soldier with a leering smile tossing upward a child with an idiotic face. Below in large lettering is printed: "Ticket to meet your wife and kid."

On the reverse side of the leaflet the Japs tell the American fighting man how this can be done. They say "Here's all you do! 1. Come towards our lines waving a white flag. 2. Strap your gun over your left shoulder, muzzle down and pointed behind you. 3. Show this ticket to the sentry. 4. Any number of you may surrender with this one ticket. Japanese Army Headquarters."

How many American fighting men accept the invitation? Well, you can bet there isn't even one. For by this time the whole world knows that the Japs have neither honor in peace or in war.

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1934

Although the department of Conservation expects revenue of about $275,000 this year from the sale of fishing licenses, it is believed the receipts would be much higher if present laws were amended to require a license to fish in Great Lakes waters.

Munising — While 3-year-old Bobby Masters slept on the running board of an auto parked near the paper mill, an anxious mother notified police and several hundred people were searching for him in the vicinity of the Anna river.

20 Years Ago—1924

Fire last night on the Ed. Joque farm on the outskirts of Garden destroyed all buildings except the house. In the buildings destroyed were 25 tons of old hay, 20 tons of new hay, 300 bushel of threshed oats and 10 loads of oats not threshed.

Delta county council Girl Scouts, at its annual meeting in Gladstone named commissioners for the coming year and discussed various projects to be included in the year's activities.

25 Years Ago—1919

William J. Schmitz was named chief ranger at the annual meeting of The Catholic Order of Foresters in the K. of C. hall. The meeting was followed by luncheon and a smoker.

The Cloverland fair opens today in Stephenson with a splendid array of exhibits and attractions. With favorable weather, previous attendance records should be broken.

It seems there has been considerable difficulty over game law enforcement in that county, and every time a ticklish problem came up between the officers and the violators, the county board got busy and passed an anti-conservation resolution. These resolutions were duly dispatched to the conservation commission.

Talking about the matter to avoid conservationists of that county, Conservation Officer Raass suggested that perhaps what the county (and the county supervisors) needed was a little educational program. Perhaps a little more information and a little less damping.

The conservationist of that county replied that he believed the state should carry the educational ball—sort of convert local folks into law-abiding citizens without they liked it or not.

Dan is still shaking his head over that one.

"Somehow they don't seem to get the idea that the people own the game, and that every time a deer is killed out of season they're being robbed," he said.

THINKING IT OVER—The Upper Peninsula State Fair at Escanaba should be revived next year. One of the first wartime casualties, it should be one of the first postwar rebirths. If necessary the sideshow attractions could be dispensed with, but the fair should be revived as an agricultural event.

There is no reason why the fair should not be held—if organized horse racing is to continue in this state and throughout the nation as it has done all through the blackest of war years.

Horse racing attracts 10,000 persons daily (more on Sundays) in the city of Detroit alone. In New York, Chicago and Boston the crowds are still larger.

If such men as Alfred Vanderbilt, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Whitney, Joseph Early Widener, Elizabeth Arden, Charles T. Fisher, Frederick M. Alger, T. D. Buhl, Mrs. M. B. DuCharme and many others of the "blue blood" could raise horses race and bet on them during wartime there is no reason why there should not be an agricultural fair.

Certainly most of our folks would rather have a U. P. State Fair in 1945 than see the Kentucky Derby.

The Lyons Den

NEW YORK—Darryl Zanuck, now completing the movie adaptation of Moss Hart's "Winged Victory," tried to sign the playwright to a movie contract. "You write one play every two years," Zanuck pointed out. "You output is too limited. Come to our studio, and you'll become prolific. You'll write all the time, the pay check will be high, and you'll have complete freedom of subject matter. Anything you want will be yours. We won't interfere at all. How does that sound to you?"

"Sounds fine," Hart agreed. "So will you sign?" continued Zanuck. "Sure," said the playwright. "When?" asked the film producer. "When my clothes are ragged," said Hart. "When my money's gone, and when there's just nothing else I can do."

DR. ALFRED GWYNNE VAN DERBILT has been hospitalized because of a foot infection. His return here has been delayed until mid-October. . . . On the day the war ends the Abbott Laboratories, through the Associated American Artists, will send the best American painters all over Europe to make an art record of the reconstruction period. . . . Ivor Novello, recently released from a London cell to which he had been sentenced for violating the rationing laws, is in France now entertaining the troops. . . . Burnett Hershey's "Skyways of Tomorrow" will be published by the Foreign Policy Assn. on Thursday. . . . Jimmy Durante, Gene Kelly and Olivia de Havilland will touch off the broadcast series urging all people to vote.

KARL NIERENDORF, the art dealer who fled from Germany and opened his gallery on 57th St., has received an odd request from a prisoner of war camp in the Midwest. It came from a German painter named Janitz. The painter reminded him that they once had known each other in Berlin, that he now was a prisoner of war, that to while away his time and perhaps earn some money he would like to start painting again. The Nazi soldier-artists therefore asked the German exile not only to send him paint and canvas but also to promise him a one-man show.

BURGESS MEREDITH wooed Paulette Goddard for more than three years. He began his suit before he entered the Army and continued it from abroad. She assured him of her love, but was reluctant to marry. "Look, You've been getting unfavorable publicity in gossip-columns, with a lot of vicious items about you," said Meredith. "Marry me and that gossip will end." Miss Goddard became convinced, and she married Meredith. . . . Within a few days—as the result of a weird psychopathic campaign of slander by a woman who finally was exposed by a detective agency—Miss Goddard became the victim of the most vicious publicity she ever had received.

CAPT. MEREDITH, incidentally, recently discussed his brief career as president of Actors' Equity. He told of Equity's attempt at unionizing the chorus girls at Billy Rose's night club. He went to Rose's office to discuss it, but wasn't persuasive enough. . . . "We're old friends, Billy," Meredith finally warned him, "but if you don't sign we'll have to picket you." . . . "If you picket me," Rose replied, "I'll picket Equity—and I picket with elephants."

PRIV. WILLIAM SAROVAN, who has been in the Army more than two years, met Pvt. Private Belle Chodorov, sister of the playwrights Edward and Jerome Chodorov. They met in a bar in London. Both glanced at the absence of stripes on the other's sleeves, quickly embraced, and then toasted their meeting reverently. "Here's to the only two privates in all England!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON
(Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—Washington tea cups are rattling over the new motion picture "Wilson" and Geraldine Fitzgerald's rendition of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson II.

Mrs. Wilson, the former Widow Galt, is still quite a personage in Washington, with plenty of friends and plenty of enemies. She didn't go to the Washington opening of the picture (having already gone to the New York opening), but both her friends and her enemies did. And they have plenty to say.

General reaction is that the picture is one of Hollywood's masterpieces and should be seen by everyone at a time when winning the peace is so important. But Washington society is tearing it to pieces when it comes to Mrs. Wilson II.

Lovely Geraldine Fitzgerald as Mrs. Wilson II is too generous, too beautiful for the ladies of Washington, who cannot forget the way in which the Widow Galt became the "Mrs. President" of the Wilson Administration, insisted on handling matters of state, and generally domineered the White House.

If it hadn't been for the high-handed tactics of Mrs. Wilson II, many people believe that Wilson's troubles with the Senate would not have been so unfortunate and that the peace structure he built at Versailles would not have been so disastrously rebuffed.

—QUEBEC CONFERENCE—
Intimate advisers with whom the President talked before leaving for Quebec got the definite impression that he planned to have a friendly but frank showdown with the Prime Minister regarding certain Far Eastern problems which have rankled in Anglo-American relations. Also the President was confident that this Quebec conference would have more concrete results than that of one year ago.

At the time of the last Quebec meeting, August, 1943, relations with Russia were on tenterhooks. The second front had not yet been pledged to Stalin, there were rumors that Russia might even get out of the war, and the Allied picture generally was not bright enough to permit the President personally to push certain Anglo-American differences too far.

Nevertheless, the President's military and naval men did a lot of pushing and, as a result, the last Quebec meeting was one of the most vigorous of the entire war. The sparks literally flew around the Citadel.

Now, one year later, almost exactly the same problems—the Far East and Burma—remain to be threshed out. And with the war going infinitely better, the inside story of the last Quebec conference can now be told.

With the Prime Minister still not ready to start the second front in Western France, the President told him that the United States could not wait in the Pacific and must forge ahead. Accordingly, the problem of recapturing the Burma Road, Singapore and the Malays came up for vital discussion.

To retake any part of them, the British fleet naturally was necessary. It was agreed that, after the Mediterranean had been cleaned up, the British fleet could be shifted to Indian waters.

—BRITISH DELAY—
The American Chiefs of Staff naturally were anxious to begin the Burma-Malay campaign soon. But the late Sir Dudley Pound, then First Sea Lord, said that His Majesty's warships would have to be returned from the Mediterranean to home waters to have their bottoms scraped and give their crews a rest.

"When can they reach Indian waters?" asked General Marshall.

"In March or April," replied Sir Dudley Pound.

Pound was referring to the spring of 1944 and, since the Quebec conference was in August, 1943, this meant a delay of seven or eight months. So the amazed General Marshall shot back:

"But that's just about the beginning of the monsoon season." This, of course, meant several months more delay because of the heavy rains.

But the unperturbed Admiral Pound replied: "Quite so, quite so."

General Marshall, who can be very blunt, then told the British in effect that they were stalling on the whole Far Eastern campaign, and turned to Admiral Leahy for support. Admiral Pound very much resented Marshall's accusation and said so. But Admiral Leahy vigorously backed Marshall up. Admiral Ernest King, commander of the U. S. Fleet, said nothing.

This was just one of several forthright military arguments which took place at Quebec last year. Good military men, of course, are picked because they have strong minds, and showdowns of this kind frequently occurred between Allied leaders in the last war.

However, this does not get away from the fact that today, one year and one month later, the Burma campaign is no more advanced, nor have any efforts been made to retake Singapore or the Malays. Also it is inescapable that exactly the same problems, affecting India, China and British delays in the Far East, must now be ironed out at the second Quebec conference.

Some men tell their wives everything that happens, and some even tell them more than that.

The same men who never know what to order in a restaurant kick about what is served at home.

The first of the month is the period when the doorbell calls people to the window.

ROY H. SCHEERS DIES OF WOUNDS

Woodlawn Soldier Victim Of Battle Injuries August 28

Sgt. Roy H. Scheers, nephew of Mrs. H. Zeegers, 625 So. 16th street, died in England Aug. 28 of wounds received in action in France Aug. 9. The war department informed Mrs. Zeegers in a telegram received here yesterday.

Although he was less than 22 years of age at the time of his death, Sgt. Scheers had been in service nearly four years. He enlisted in the army Oct. 1, 1940 training in North Carolina before he went overseas on October, 1942. He participated in the invasion of North Africa, was wounded in action April 23, 1943 in Tunisia and was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry.

He was cited as a fearless and efficient soldier and for operating his machine gun, even though wounded, at Sedjema Valley in Tunisia, dispelling a strong German counterattack.

After the North African campaign, Sgt. Scheers was transferred to Sicily and later to England. He moved into France early in the invasion of that country and was wounded in France Aug. 9.

Sgt. Scheers was removed to a hospital in England, but died of his wounds on August 28.

He was born at Woodlawn, Cornell Township, Dec. 21, 1922 and attended school there. He operated a farm there before he entered service.

The parents of Sgt. Scheers have been dead for a number of years. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Hjalmar Kellomien, of Arnold; Mrs. Lawrence Pudvin of Denver, Colo.; and Phyllis Scheer, of Escanaba; and an aunt Mrs. Zeegers.

WITH THE A. E. F. IN EASTERN FRANCE, (Delayed) (AP)—If you stumble across any citizens still unconvinced of the utter futility of ever forcefully dominating a really independent people tell them this story of how quiet, unarmed farm folk in Eastern-Central France fought for their country.

Today we drove many twisting miles northward through rolling wooded farmlands stretching westward from the Alps. Yesterday the Germans drove here.

Before they fled they blew up bridges of many major secondary highways. They felled thousands of trees which parallel the roads in order to create countless road blocks. They planted mines when they had time. The final last effort to delay and confuse the pursuers was to tear up or twist road signs.

If the Germans even noted the impressive French farm folk who quietly went about plowing, planting, hoeing and harvesting during these delaying tactics they must have shrugged off their presence with a sneer.

After all, most fighting men long since have joined the Maquis. Those remaining are only very old or very young—the aged, infirm, infantile or womenfolk. Besides how could they fight without arms?

But the dust hardly had settled in the distance as the Germans fled when the farm people struck their blow for freedom. First they tackled the bridges—the biggest obstacle in the Seventh Army's pursuit.

Quickly and quietly by the hundreds they unhitched from their plows teams of huge horses and yokes of oxen and hitched them to road scrapers, road drags. Those without such equipment brought spades and shovels, even hoes. Still others brought only willing arms to carry rocks and logs.

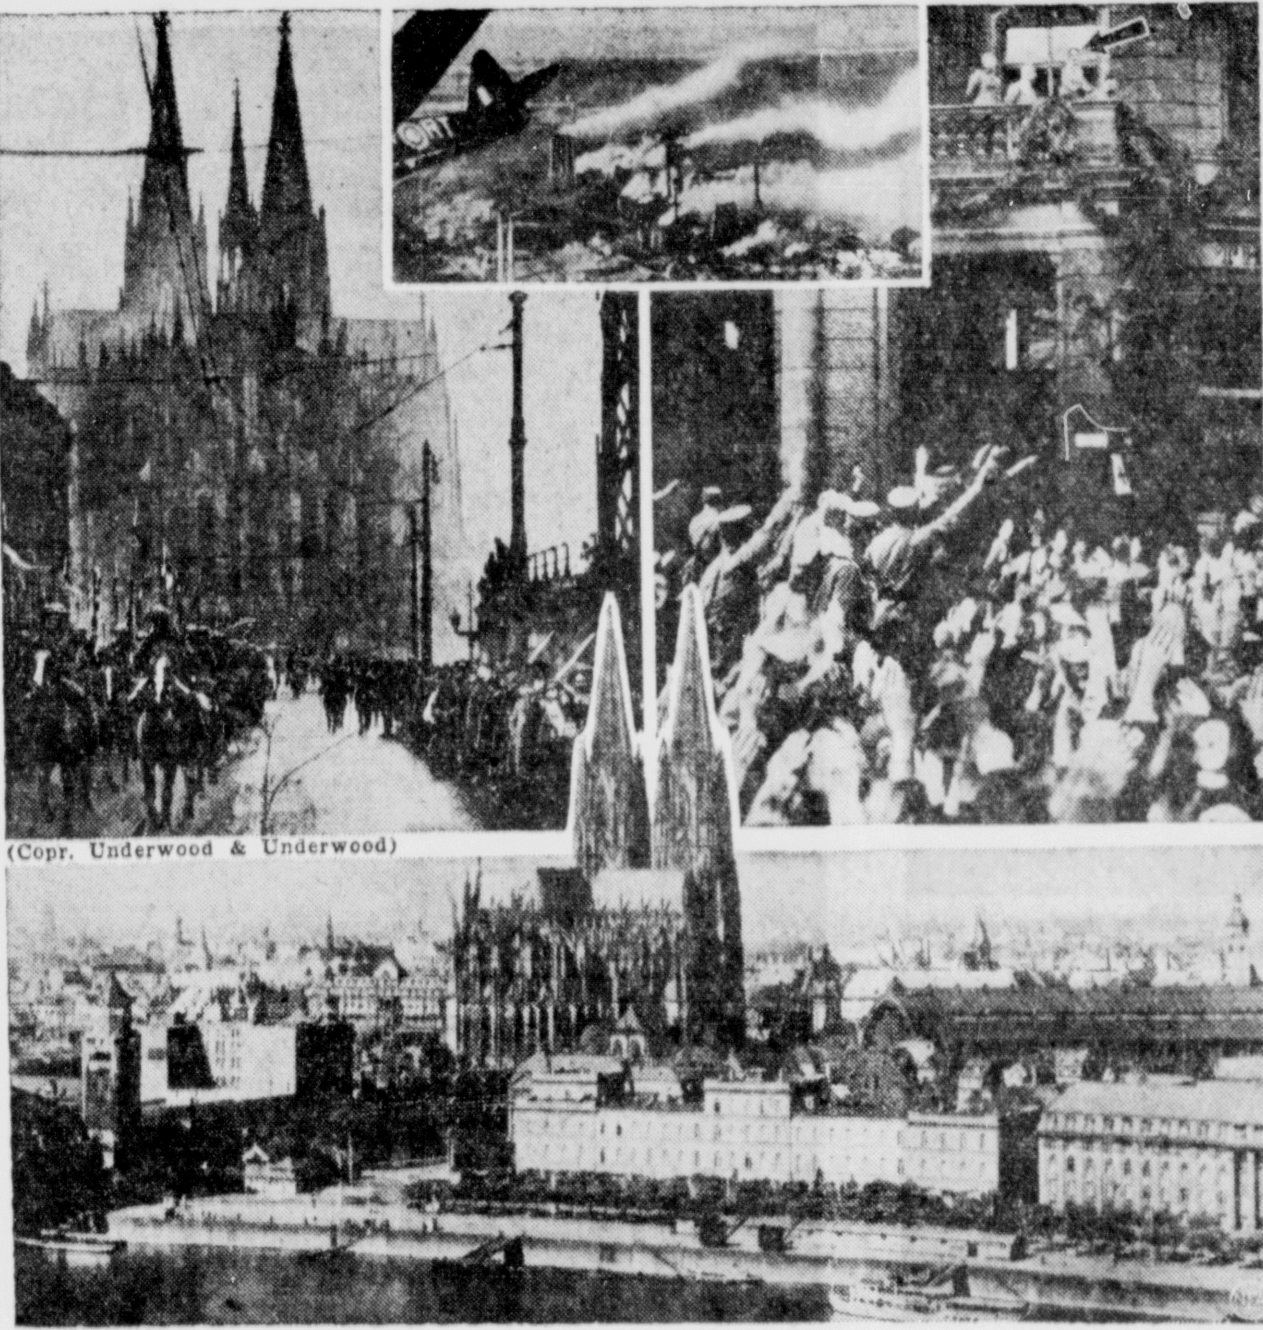

They scraped, shoveled, and spaded dirt into blasted gaps on the road bed. If a stream ran through they bridged it with rough wooden spans. Then in long sweating lines they carried endless loads of rocks and gravel and placed them painstakingly atop the structures.

When we drove through—hours ahead of the military traffic in some instances—we found the bridges already passable for jeep traffic. When we waved to the cheering, sweat-soaked men, women and children and called "tres bon" (very good), they answered "it is the least we can do" and waved us on.

The same was true for road blocks. Bitterly resentful of this German destruction of trees which beautified their country's roads for many generations, they silently and grimly brought axes and cross-cut saws and went to work. They cut the trees into sections and dragged them off the highways. "Later we will cut them up into firewood," said one farmer. "It gets cold here in the winter."

Meanwhile others were busy probing carefully for mines. Areas of which they were not sure, they marked off so American engineers could clear them later.

An iron blade, probably 5,000 years old, has been found in one of the Egyptian pyramids.

COLOGNE—Crossroads of Western Germany—Cologne, Germany's third largest city, toward which Allied armies are racing across Belgium, is known as the "crossroads of western Germany." In this ancient Rhinish capital meet all the Rhine valley and Paris-Berlin railroads and Europe's greatest inland waterway. In addition Cologne commands rail approaches to Belgian ports. Founded in 38 B. C. by the Roman Emperor Claudius, who named it for his mother, Cologne or Koln, as the Germans call it, has had a hectic history through many wars. Occupied by the British for seven years after the World War I armistice, it was one of the first cities taken over by Hitler's troops when Germany reconquered the demilitarized Rhineland in 1936. Center of a vast industrial area containing many war industries, Cologne was a target even for World War I's tiny bomb-layers. Called Germany's most-bombed city in this war, it has been "covertized" by hundreds of raids, culminating in 1000-plane "blockbuster" attacks. Photo at top, above, shows British planes swooping in for low-level attack on Cologne war plants. At left, British occupation forces of 1919 are seen entering the city. In contrast is photo at right, showing Cologne's helling Hitler (arrow) on eve of 1936 election in which his foreign policies were solidly supported. Bottom photo shows general view of city, dominated by the great cathedral, which Germans claim was ruined by British air raids. (NEA Photos.)

Dewey Victory Chances Increase Past 10 Days

MARQUIS CHILDS

New York — Events of the past ten days have greatly increased Governor Dewey's chances of election. More significant than the outcome of the Maine election is the fact that forthcoming polls will show a noticeable gain in Dewey strength and a corresponding decline in Roosevelt's stature.

What makes the result of the newest polls particularly interesting is the fact they were taken during the week the end of the Paris fell. During that same week Dewey sent John Foster Dulles to Washington to confer with Secretary Cordell Hull on the Dumbarton Oaks talks, thereby identifying himself with the coming peace.

Did the fall of Paris symbolize to many voters the end of the war in Europe? And do they feel that with the end of the European war Roosevelt's services are no longer essential?

Those are the big questions as the campaign enters the intensive stage. If the answer in both instances is yes, then the odds shift from Roosevelt to Dewey. While the president still leads, his margin is growing smaller.

Landslide in Maine

In Maine according to Pollster George Gallup's analysis of the figures, the Democrats polled a smaller percentage of the vote than at any time since the Civil War. Gallup, who plays with figures as a vocation and an avocation, applied this same proportionate decline to the 1940 voting totals in key states, and the result showed Dewey carrying virtually all of these states. How much this actually means, only November 7 will prove.

But there is little doubt that the size of the vote cast is likely to decide the outcome of the election. It's difficult for the most expert pollsters to make any estimate on this score, Gallup believes it will go under 45,000,000 and perhaps considerably under.

If it drops very much under 42,000,000 Dewey, in my opinion, is elected. The total vote in 1940 was about 50,000,000. This time, something like 12,000,000 workers have migrated from one part of the country to the other, and several million men and women of voting age are overseas.

Dewey's top advisors have stressed the significance of the small vote. They know that victory lies in apathy and indifference. This may explain the basic strategy of the Dewey campaign. As all reports from his campaign train show, the Republican candidate seems to be deliberately avoiding crowds in the course of his journey across the continent. His train is being hauled through switch yards and by circuitous routes around major cities. Secrecy is enforced on trainmen.

Attack Hillman's CIO

Who is he seeing, then? He's talking with the professional politicians who can get out the regular Republican vote by tried and tested means. In his two campaign speeches thus far, as in his now in North Carolina, after spending the past two years on duty in Midway.

Press conferences, he has stuck to generalizations, offending the fewest possible voters by cutting the content down to the commonest possible denominator.

Meanwhile, the attack conducted by the Dewey out-riders is concentrated on the CIO and Sidney Hillman as a sinister agent who will dictate America's political choice. That would be funny if it's implications weren't so serious. The CIO's political action committee has a long way to go to prove its effectiveness.

In one sense, Maine was no test at all. The National Pac Committee put no money into Maine. The show up there was run locally.

In another sense, Maine showed why the effectiveness of Pac is certain to be limited. The local CIO organization in Maine insisted on putting up labor candidates as such, even though that is contrary to Pac policy. It would have been smarter politics to have backed Representative Margaret Chase Smith, who has had a good record and is an efficient congressman, rather than to have put energy and money on an opposition candidate, who, as the results showed, never had a chance.

PAC is only as good as its local organization. Discipline and direction cannot be enforced from a national office. The nightmare of Sidney Hillman scourging the country on an electronic broom is just that—a nightmare to scare babies with.

Wise Owl Learns Painful Lesson

Mitchell, S. D. (AP) — Yehudi, pet owl, in the L. E. English family, strayed once but he was back in five minutes with a flock of wild birds, led by a woodpecker which concentrated on his head, dive-bombing him all the way to the English front porch.

He was originally scheduled to appear in Escanaba on Monday, September 25, but word was received this week that the itinerary was being rearranged and he would not be able to come here until a later date.

NORWAY'S SHIPS HELP "GI JOE" RESCUE FRANCE

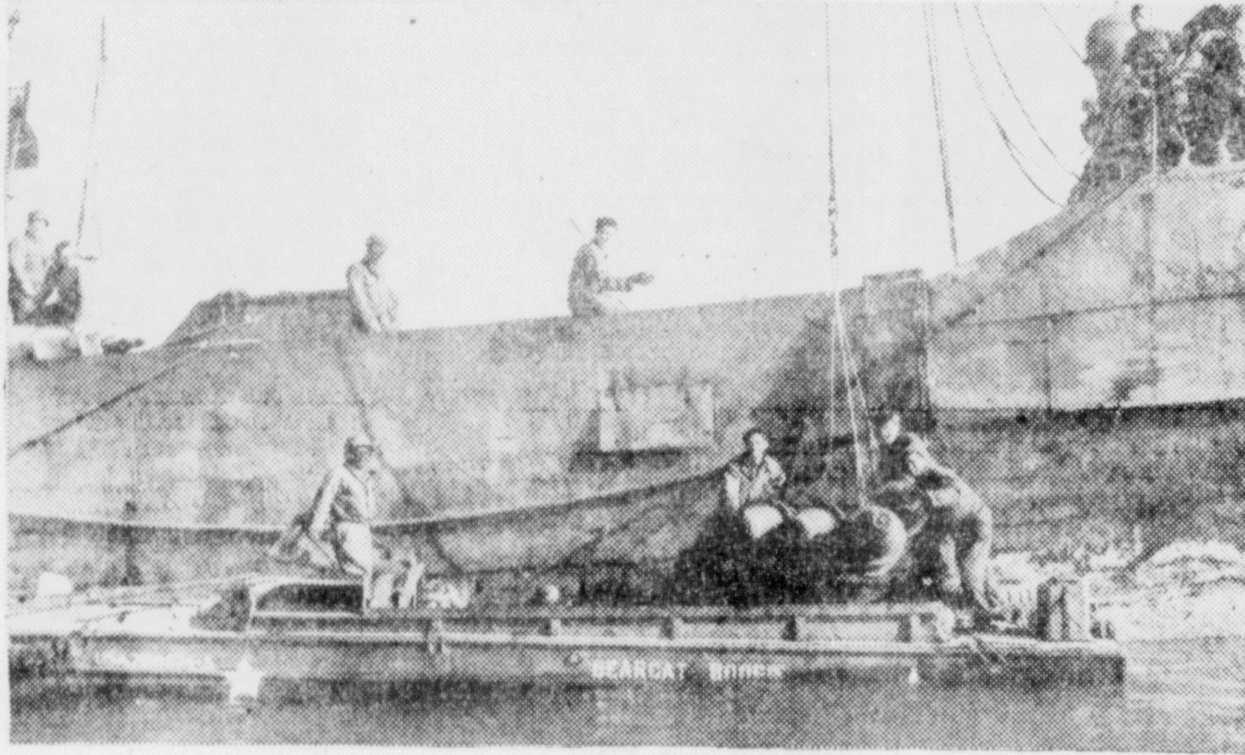

This brave Norwegian, wearing the uniform of a British Naval Commander, carries forth the traditions of his Viking ancestors while directing landing operations from the Norse ship "Heien" as it leads the Allied armada of supplies and men onto the beaches of France to make possible the rescue of that brave country from its Nazi oppressors.

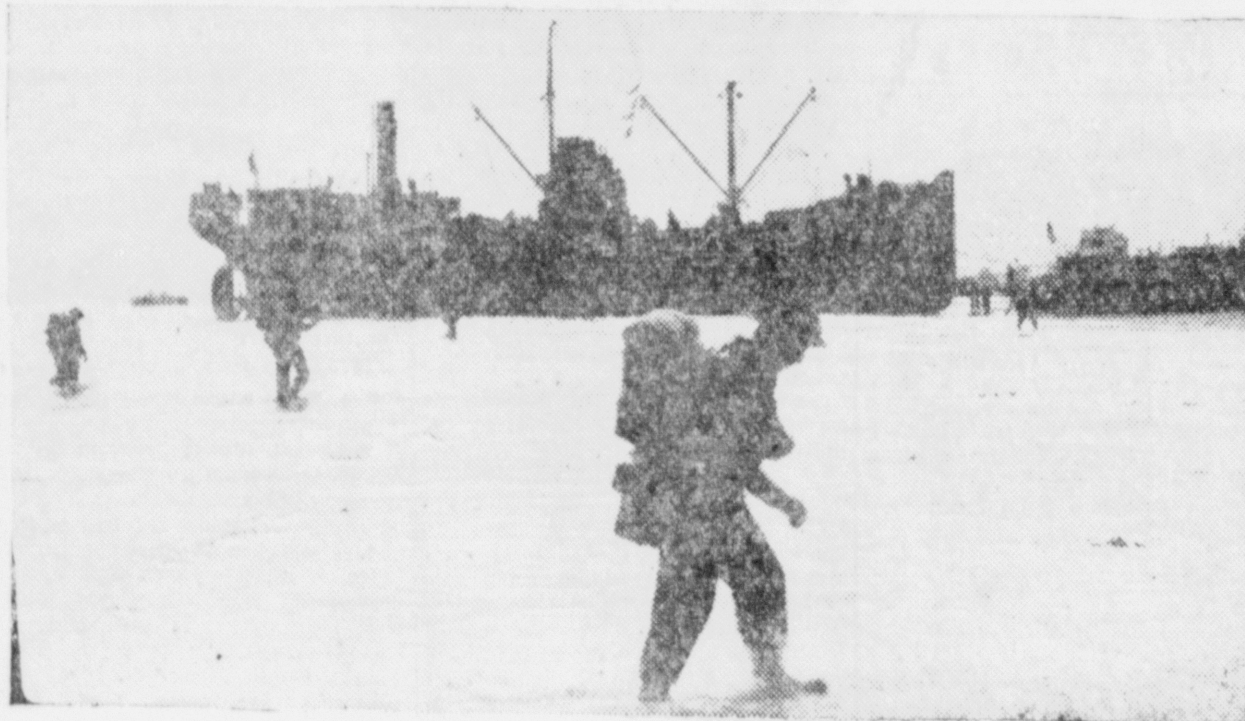

A steady stream of ships, many of them bearing the Norwegian flag, course daily out of England to bring in the material and men of the Allied nations who are keeping Hitler's hordes on the run across Europe.

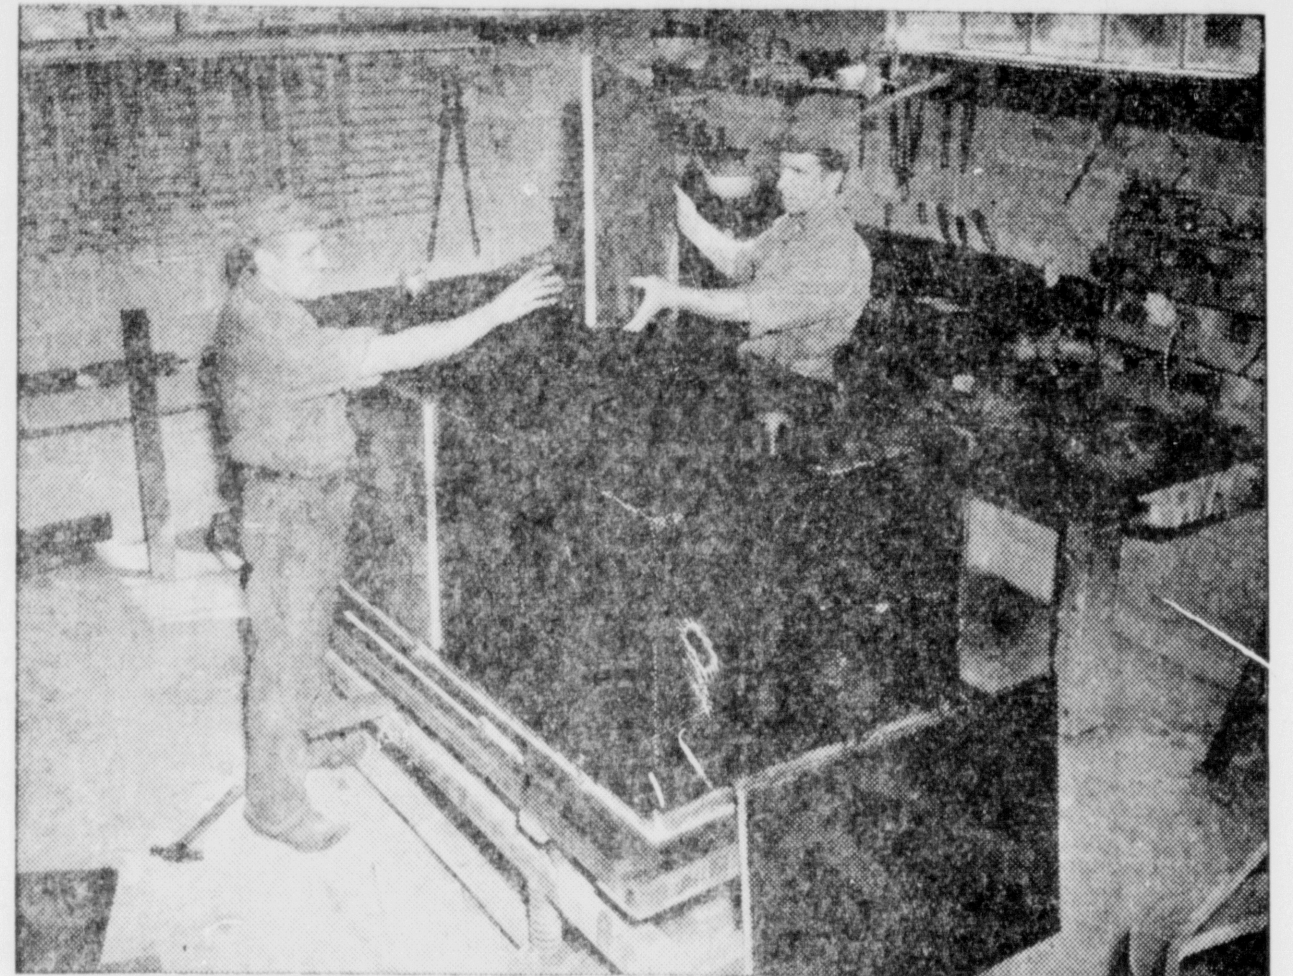

A trio of "GI Joes" take time off from fighting to unload the deadly 500 and 1,000 pound bombs that proved so effective in subjugating the Nazis. In the background may be seen another Norwegian ship among the hundreds of ships that daily keep the Allied armies and their partisan supporters fully supplied.

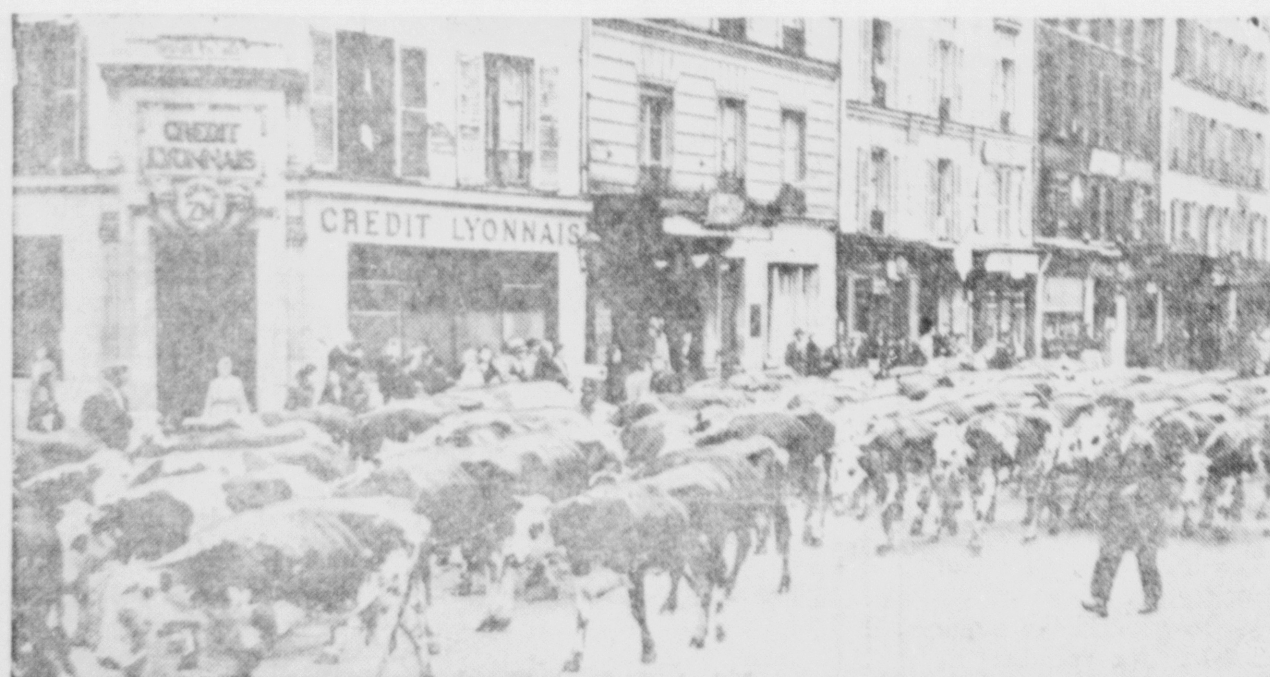

Unloading supplies from a Norwegian vessel is an every-day sight along the beachheads of France as American troops work side by side with their Allies to bring about the rescue of Europe's conquered nations.

Far into the night, the steady procession of men and materiel keeps pouring into Europe's strongholds, as Allied troops victoriously pursue the Nazi army back into Germany.

ESCANABA INDUSTRY HAS NEW PRODUCT—The Concrete Burial Vault company of Escanaba has begun the manufacture of milk cooling tanks, which are making a hit with farmers of this area. Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE D-248: Millicent G., aged 39, is the mother of a son in the Marines and a 16-year-old daughter.

"Mother used to be the social leader in the small town from which we moved when we came to Atlanta," the daughter informed me.

"She was a dominant type of personality and always had arguments with my father, but they blew over."

"Somehow, though, they would always try to get us children to take sides in their quarrels, and many a night I'd cry myself to sleep over her harsh words to me."

"We now have a nice home in Atlanta and my Daddy makes a comfortable living," but Mother knows no one. Since my brother joined the Marines, Mother has been miserable.

"She is unhappy and seems to resent anybody else being happy. She tells me she has only contempt for my father, but that she won't divorce him for my sake."

Menopausal Women

"She says I'm just like my horrible father because I like to go visit a girl friend when she is in one of her temper tantrums."

"But Daddy isn't horrible at all, at least to my knowledge. He travels a great deal. When he is gone, she can be just as sweet as possible, but when he gets home on Friday, our life is just Hell."

"She gets cross and mean and tells me I am his type. That there's no hope for me, and that there are some people who'll never be good if they're like their father."

"He tries to tell me not to listen, for she doesn't mean what she says, and then this makes her more angry."

Why Daughters Leave Home

Dr. Crane, I love mother so terribly, it makes me all unhappy and miserable to see her so upset. That hurts me worse than the mean things she says.

"But what can I do? She married him, I didn't! She keeps telling me how much she has done for me and how many sacrifices she has made, but I'd rather have nothing at all done for me, but know I lived in a happy home."

"For the past week Mother has been quarrelling violently with Daddy and he quarrels back again."

"I've been staying away from home as late as I can to avoid the fuss, but I have come home when the other girls leave the party."

"Tonight after I got back, Mother cried and said her life had been ruined. She said Daddy and I spoke the same language."

Signs of Inferiority Complex

"Then she tells me how good and fine and popular she is, and how much smarter she is than Daddy, or me, too."

"But if she really believed that, then she wouldn't need to keep telling people, would she, Dr. Crane? Maybe it's building up her ego."

"I wish you'd give me some bulletins to take home to her. I came up to Chicago with Daddy on one of his business trips. She refused to come along."

"I pray to God at night that something will make my parents change, but maybe God expects me to help Him to get them readjusted, so that's why I got up the courage to come to your office."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Miss Leonhard
In Title Role
Of "Marietta"

Joanne Leonhard, young prima donna, who was born in Minneapolis, and who began her career as a singer on the west coast, will sing the title role of "Naughty Marietta." Victor Herbert's light opera, which will be presented here at William W. Oliver Memorial Auditorium the evening of Wednesday, October 4.

Miss Leonhard, since her association with the American Civic Opera Company, has appeared both in the role of "Rosina" in Rossini's "Barber of Seville," and as "Marietta," she has been acclaimed by both critics and audiences as a singer as well as an actress of excellent ability.

Her clear voice is particularly suited to the melodious Victor Herbert songs, and she is more than entertaining in the role of the little, flirting Marietta.

BANKS REDEEM SAVING BONDS

Treasury Dept. Arranges New Setup Starting October 2

The Gladstone State Savings Bank has been qualified as a bond redemption unit by the United States Treasury Department. It was announced yesterday by John M. Olson, cashier.

Beginning October 2, 1944, the bank will pay any War Savings Bond of series A, B, C, D or E, subject to treasury regulations, whenever such bond is presented for cashing by an individual (natural person) whose name appears on the bond as owner or co-owner and who furnishes proper identification.

The Treasury Department is urging bond owners not to redeem any bond before its maturity date unless an emergency requires such action. The bonds, they point out, are a good investment, paying more than two per cent interest.

Banks throughout the nation are being invited to qualify as redemption units. At present the only exchanges are the post offices and these are expected to prove inadequate to handle all redemptions in the future inasmuch as an estimated 60 per cent of the citizens of the nation are now bond holders.

Atlantic Monthly Publishes Story By Clair Laidlaw

Miss Clara Laidlaw, Ann Arbor, former member of the Gladstone public school faculty, is the author of another story published in a current issue of the Atlantic Monthly.

Titled "Lost Child" it is the story of a school girl in an Upper Peninsula mining town, written in the first person of the girl's teacher.

To its readers the Atlantic Monthly introduces Miss Laidlaw thusly:

"Clara Laidlaw, a native of Gladstone, Michigan, knows the mines of the Upper Peninsula, and she knows by personal experience those public schools which do their best for the miners' children. "In 1942 Miss Laidlaw won an Avery Hopwood Award with her short story, 'The Little Black Boys.' The story—it was her first in print—appeared in the Atlantic in December of that year and subsequently has been reprinted in The Best American Short Stories of 1943. O Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories of 1942, Seas of God, the new Whit Burnett collection, and more recently in an English anthology."

'SPUD' HARVEST
IN 2 WEEKS

County Agricultural Agent Outlines
Plans

According to Joseph Heirman, county agricultural agent, in two more weeks a majority of farmers should be under way harvesting their 1944 potato crop. The few remaining days before harvest starts should be spent in getting machinery and storage spaces ready so that there will be no delay when the harvesting operations begin, he said.

Storage bins should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected with a solution of one pound of copper sulphate to 10 gallons of water. Another good practice is to sprinkle about a half-inch of clean sand on the floor of the storage house before dumping in the potatoes. This will eliminate the possibility of disease spreading among the tubers while in storage.

Diggers, graders, crates and bags should also be disinfected. A creosote solution used in dipping sheep can be used for this purpose at the rate of 1 gallon to 25 gallons of water. One of the most rapidly spreading potato diseases, namely, ring rot, is beginning to creep in at various parts of the Upper Peninsula. This disease is spread through the use of dirty equipment particularly crates and bags. By using the above mentioned disinfectant the disease can be kept under control without any difficulty.

Farmers at this time are probably thinking about the potato prices which they are apt to get for their 1944 crop. The latest report covering the nation as a whole indicates that there will be a much smaller crop this year as compared to 1943. In 1943 the nation produced 464 million bushels as compared to 362 million which was the average for the past 10 years.

As a result most of last year's crop was sold at floor prices. Early in the growing season it looked as though the nation was again going to produce a bumper crop of potatoes, however, several factors have entered in to reduce the yields. The September 1 estimate shows that we can expect a crop of 377 million bushels. This means that we will have approximately 90 million bushels less than the 1943 crop. The situation is nothing to get alarmed about, however, farmers can expect to get higher prices for their potatoes this year. The October floor price is $2 a hundred f. o. b. on car with the ceiling of $2.35 a hundred. Farmers selling potatoes in smaller than carload lots are allowed a higher price. If there are any farmers who would like to discuss the marketing of potatoes they should feel free to write or drop in at the county agricultural agent's office.

TELLS ABOUT FIGHTING
Iron Mountain—Alden P. Morner, 132 West Ridge street, promoted to Lieutenant (J. E.) from ensign just before returning from service in the Asiatic-Pacific area, recently landed one of the most shot up, if not the most shot up plane, on a carrier June 16 after an air fight over the Japanese held Bonin Islands.

Morner was wounded in the left foot by shrapnel from a 20 millimeter shell from a Jap Zero in that action. The wound kept him from flying for two and a half weeks. At the end of that time he was back in the air at the same place over the Bonins where he received his injury.

The Ironwood flier is the pilot of a navy Helicat single seat fighter. He and six others attacked three Jap planes in the June 16 action. That is all the planes they saw first, but after knocking down the three they faced 35 more enemy craft. The seven navy fliers included five from the division to which Morner belonged, and two were members of another division. Two fliers were lost from Morner's division. One, Ensign Jack Horne, was seen to parachute three-fourths of a mile off-shore and is presumed to be a prisoner. Nothing is known about the other, Lieutenant Henderson, leader of Morner's division.

133 Donors Visit
The Blood Unit

The total number of blood donors to visit the State Health unit at the Elks Club Monday through Thursday was 132. It fell far short of the goal of the possible 280 that could have been handled in the four day period. The unit handled 24 donors Monday, 28 Tuesday, 34 Wednesday and 46 Thursday.

According to Dr. Mitchell, in charge of the unit, the blood will be returned to the bank at the Shaw hospital pint for pint. Local physicians will be able to draw upon the plasma bank at any time for treatment of their patients.

Chief use to which the plasma is put is to counteract shock or supply blood in cases of hemorrhage. The plasma bank service is particularly valuable as a time saver which sometimes means the difference between life and death. It eliminates the necessity of searching the family, taking blood tests and so forth, for the needed "blood type." It also is a time saver in that the plasma can be immediately administered to the patient without first having to be taken from the donor.

It is better from the donor's point of view too since when he is in a nervous emotional state which members of a family are when accident comes to one, it is more difficult for the donor to stand the loss of blood.

Briefly Told

Eskymos Open Football Season With Soo Blue Devils Here Today

SERIES DATES BACK TO 1913

Lock City Eleven Out
To Break Escanaba
Supremacy

The Eskymos football team will open its season here this afternoon, meeting the Sault Blue Devils at the Escanaba athletic field at two o'clock.

The Soo-Escanaba series dates back to 1913, with annual games consecutively without a miss since 1921. In the 26 games played by the schools, Escanaba has won 17, Soo eight with one scoreless tie.

What happened in the first couple of games in something Escanaba fans of years gone by would like to forget. The Soo won the first game, back in 1913, 64 to 6, and then just to prove it was no mistake they won again the following year, 66 to 6. In 1915, the Soo won a third time, 20-0. What has happened since the series was renewed in 1921 and in most of the subsequent years is something the Soo fans would like to forget. The last Soo victory was in 1932, a 6 to 0 triumph. Since then the Eskymos have marked up 11 consecutive victories, all by decisive margins except a 6-0 squeak in 1934.

Lock Experience
This year the Blue Devils insist they will break the string of Escanaba victories. They have the advantage in weight and experience over Coach Ruwitch's current Eskymo team.

Although the Eskymos will have a sprinkling of lettermen in their lineup today, none of the starters is a regular from the 1943 season. Hirm, who saw a lot of action at tackle last season, is playing an end position today and Wickholm, a guard in 1943, is starting at quarterback.

Despite rank inexperience, the Eskymos have developed nicely within the past two weeks and Coach Ruwitch indicated that he believes the lineup will provide formidable opposition to the Lock City eleven.

Officials will be Hiney, Rudness and Vanni, all of Negaunee.

The prospective starting lineups:

Escanaba	Pos.	Sault
Fin	LT	Bruce
Hirm	LT	Rogers
Boyle	LG	McDonald
Scott	C	Doherty
Corbett	RG	Barr
Weir	RT	Butsch
Dufour	RE	Cooper
Wickholm	QB	James
Peterson	LHB	Splan
Schellner	RHB	Annatyn

Seahawks Open Grid Season At Ann Arbor

BY FRANK KENESSON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 15 (AP)—Iowa Preflight and Michigan, the nation's second and third ranking football teams of last season, lock horns here tomorrow in the 1944 inaugural for both teams. The Seahawks, who are the only recognizable carry-overs from 1943, a crowd of 25,000 was in prospect.

Both teams waded through everything but Notre Dame last year, Preflight winning nine games and bowing to the Irish 14-13 while Michigan was grabbing eight decisions and losing to Notre Dame 35-12. Both finished back of Notre Dame in the final Associated Press ranking poll.

Each club has only one regular, its fullback, from last year's highly successful campaign. Bernard (Bus) Mertens, ex-Iowa flash, is back to fullback the Seahawks another year and Capt. Bob Wiese of Jamestown, N. D., again will operate at fullback for Michigan.

For the Seahawks even the coach is different, Lt. Comm. Jack Meagher, former Rice and Auburn mentor, has succeeded Don Faurot, who left Missouri to pilot the preflight machine last season. The Wolverines are under the same watchful eye of H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, who goes into his seventh season as Michigan's head coach with a six-year record of 49 victories, nine defeats and 40 ties.

Only once has a Crisler-coached Michigan team lost as many as three games in a season and that was in 1942 when the Wolverines met the Seahawks for the first and only previous time, losing 26-14.

This year Crisler has eight lettermen around whom to build and has named five of them for starting posts in the opener. Besides Wiese, the Wolverine backfield will include holdover Quarterback Joe Ponsetto of Flint, veteran Halfback Bob Nussbaumer of Oak Park, Ill., and a newcomer, Halfback Ralph Chubb of Ann Arbor. The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

As the Eskymos take the field this afternoon in their opening football game of the season against the Soo Blue Devils, less is known about their potentialities than any Escanaba high school football team on opening day in many years. This is because the starting lineup will have fewer battle scarred veterans than normally. It is never possible to properly evaluate inexperienced material from practice sessions alone. It takes actual game experience to bring out the best—and the worst—in a high school football candidate. The test then comes today.

Because of the lack of inexperienced material, if for no other reason, the Eskymos must be regarded as less powerful than Eskymo teams of the past several years. Actually, however, they may prove the lie to this opinion. It is well that they are opening with the Soo, not because the Blue Devils stack up as a "breather"—they are anything but that—but rather because the Eskymos possess a record of 11 consecutive victories over the Soo. It's true that today's football games are not won on last year's record. It is also true, however, that an 11-year record of superiority breeds confidence—and confidence is the one thing that an inexperienced team requires above all else.

On the basis of known potentialities, the Blue Devils would rate a margin of a couple of touchdowns over Coach Ruwitch's lads this afternoon. They have a representative number of experienced men in their lineup, smart ball players, and they have one game under their belt this season. Any intelligent football forecaster would pick them to win today and probably would spot a touchdown or two in a "picking pool." Just to confirm what you probably have long suspected, I concede an amazing degree of thickness between the ears and select the Eskymos as my choice to win. I do so mainly because of a hunch that the long span of Eskymo victories over the Lock City footballers has developed an inertia that will carry them through once more. The score? Oh, about 13-7.

Other game predictions: Marquette over Munising, Ironwood over Iron River, Stephenson over Peshtigo, Kaukauna over Menominee, Stambaugh over Norway. Upper peninsula teams that are idle today after scoring first round victories last week end include Iron Mountain, Bessemer, and Manistique. My score predictions for the opening week was five right, one wrong. I was tripped up by Stambaugh who nudged out Negaunee.

Hit and Miss—Moderson, Ironwood's speed merchant who gave Curley of Manistique his closest brush in the century sprints last spring, is starting on the Red Devils football team this fall. Curley is leading the scoring parade for Manistique. L'Anse is boasting a line averaging from 175 to 180 pounds. Norway will have 10 lettermen in action today at Stambaugh, but the Vikings lack the rugged backfield of last year's team. Kaukauna, Menominee's opening foe, is a new addition to the Maroon lineup. Last year's Kaukauna team was the pride of the cheese district.

Trout wild-pitched another run across in the Cleveland sixth after Boudreau singled, took second when Rocco walked and advanced to third on an infield out.

Detroit tied it up in the seventh when Trout's big bat boomed out a two-run double, scoring Swift, who had walked, and Hoover, who had singled.

Cleveland put together two hits in the ninth but failed to score until the twelfth when Gromek beat out a bunt with two away and came all the way home on Hoag's two-bagger to right center.

First game—
000 001 200 000—3 10 1
Trout and Swift; Gromek and Rosar.

Cleveland—

Negaunee Beats
Newberry 32-6
Negaunee, Sept. 15—Negaunee high school football team chalked up its first win of the season by defeating the Newberry Indians 32 to 6 in a game here tonight.

Tonight's game under the lights ended up the Washington team's season record at 1 and 1, they lost to Stambaugh last week.

Wiese, Lund, Nussbaumer Carry Michigan's Hopes

BY JOAN LINDSAY

As the curtain rises Saturday afternoon on the 1944 edition of the Wolverine grid squad at Ann Arbor, Mr. Average Fan will scan his score card, place stars after three names, Bob Wiese, Don Lund and Bob Nussbaumer and make a mental note to keep his eyes on those three men.

Captain Bob Wiese, who was fourth among the Big Ten rushing leaders in '43 with an 78.3

yard average and fifth in '42 with a 56.7, will be depended on heavily by Coach Fritz Crisler to carry the brunt of the driving and blocking as well as doing most of the punting.

Twenty-year old Bob participated in four sports in high school in Jamestown, North Dakota, basketball, track, football and tennis. In his senior year he was named All State fullback on the Associated Press team.

This year marks Wiese's third year of varsity football at Michigan. He has already completed two years of competitor as a guard on the basketball team and a pitcher and left fielder on the baseball team.

Nussbaumer at Fullback
A member of the Navy V-12 Unit and a senior in the mechanical engineering school, where he has better than a B average, Wiese will graduate this November.

Six feet two inches tall and 190 pounds, Bob can be spotted anywhere as the sailor with the most infectious smile on campus. He is a hard working player and very popular with his teammates.

At the fullback position will be Marine Nussbaumer from Oak Park, Illinois.
"Nuss" came to Michigan in the fall of '42 heralded as their outstanding all-around athlete, where he participated in football, track, baseball and basketball. After three years of football, Bob was chosen All-State fullback on the Associated Press team. He was a forward on the basketball team and as a track man won the Chicago city championship in the low hurdles and the 60 yard dash. His high school baseball team, on which he played centerfield won the Illinois state championship.

Upon entering the University, Nussbaumer went out for freshman football and track, winning minor letters in both sports, and in the spring made the varsity baseball team. As a halfback on the football squad last fall, Bob stepped into Elroy Hirsch's shoes after the "Ghost" was injured. The records show the shoe fits well as he scored 24 points or four touchdowns in five games.

Bob is the kind of player every coach likes to have on his team because he will never quit. Elroy Hirsch, the first man to earn four letters in Michigan's history labeled "Nuss", as the player he would most like to have on his team in any sport.

Despite his versatility, Nussbaumer is more than slightly prejudiced towards baseball and hopes to become a professional baseball player someday, preferably with his home town favorites, the Chicago Cubs.

Modest, blonde Don Lund is another returning letter man whose added strength in the backfield may assure the Maize and Blue another Big Ten championship this year.

With the 1944 football season beginning, his third year of varsity play will be one of the few nine letter men in the school's history when he graduates next June. To date Don has earned two letters in football, basketball and baseball.

At Southeastern High School in Detroit, Lund participated in the same three sports that he has followed in college. As a football player he was halfback on the Southeastern team that was undefeated in 1940 and was named first string half on several All State teams.

Lund is an especially energetic player and, a keen student of any game he plays. He is highly respected by all of his teammates and once in a great while the boys "gang up" on him and let him know about it as they did during the Purdue-Michigan baseball game last season.

Lund, who is married, will get his degree in physical education next June and hopes to get a coaching job in or near Detroit.

It was a very sunny afternoon and Don who covers the center-field position had been doing more than his share all afternoon. Finally in the eighth inning of the second game a high, hard hit ball started its journey towards the outer garden. Lund leaped into the air and made an amazing one-handed circus catch. At that moment led by pitcher Hirsch on the mound, the entire Wolverine ball team got down on their hands and knees and saluted him.

VARDIGAN NEW SOFTBALL HEAD

Local Association Has
Annual Meeting Here
Thursday

Paul Vardigan was elected president of the Escanaba Softball association for the ensuing year at the annual meeting of the organization Thursday evening at the Ski club. He succeeds A. A. Doucette, who has served as president for the past two years.

Other officers elected are: Warren Johnston, vice president; Gerald Kennedy, secretary; Cliff Beaudin, acting treasurer; Cliff Beaudin, Fred LaChapell and Claude Fisher, members of the board of control. Beaudin will serve as treasurer only until a new recreation director of the city of Escanaba is appointed. Under the softball association charter, the recreational director automatically is elected treasurer of the softball association.

The meeting was one of the finest in the long series of annual gatherings of the association. Team representatives spoke briefly on the experiences of the past season and prospects for the future.

Bevier Butts, organizer of the association, who is leaving Escanaba Sunday to take a position as director of recreation in Waukegan, Ill., was presented with a gift from the association in appreciation for his services.

Leo Godin, superintendent of schools at Perkins, was the principal speaker of the evening. He presented several amusing anecdotes and congratulated the association on its promotional program. He declared that the long sought lighted diamond will provide a great increase in softball interest and game attendance at Escanaba.

FIFTH IN ROW LOST BY CARDS

Cubs Take First Game
2 To 1, Lose Second
On Bumbles

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs edged out Morton Cooper, 2 to 1, today to extend the St. Louis Cardinals' losing streak to five games, their longest slump of the season, but then the Chicagoans kicked in three runs to help the Redbirds snap the streak, 3 to 2, in the second game of a double-header.

Ted Wilks, after retiring the first 13 Cubs to face him in order, pitched eight-hit ball in the nightcap to score his 16th victory against three defeats. The Cards got five hits off Ily Vandenberg and Bill Fleming only one of which came in the sixth inning when the St. Louisians scored all their runs. A pass, a fumble by Stan Hack, and a poor throw by Vandenberg went with Danny Litwhiler's double for the tallies. Both errors were on bunts.

A Letter to all Delta County Men and Women in the Armed Services

Dear Friends:

Whether you may now be in Alaska, Australia, India, Italy, France or England, on a ship of the United States Fleet or in a training camp in the United States we know that you will want to vote for your County, State and Federal officers November 7. So we have earmarked a modest portion of the funds budgeted for election expenses for the purpose of informing you how you may vote so that your ballot will be counted in November. We hope this information will be helpful to you and we are all looking forward to the day when the war will be over and you will be home again.

Yours very truly,

Delta County Board of Supervisors

On your first problem of obtaining a ballot our County Prosecutor has said: "Any type of application, whether it be the post cards furnished by the United States, or the formal applications prescribed by State law, or just an ordinary post card or letter request, it should be honored by State and local officials in Michigan. I say this because of the oath which the absent voter must sign showing his qualifications as to citizenship, age and residence which must come back with the ballot. That oath will establish the validity of the ballot, regardless of the form of the application therefor."

So all you need to do is to write your city or township clerk whose name is given below and he will mail you all of the ballots with complete instruction for voting in the November election.

Jack Vizena, 75, Tells Of Early Days As Warden

Jack Vizena, of Munising, veteran fire and game warden of the Upper Peninsula, and now state land examiner for the Michigan Department of Conservation, on Thursday celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary with a full day of work—and spent the evening reminiscing about the early days.

In 1912 he became the first fire warden in the state of Michigan. The following year law enforcement was added to his duties. Through the years he held several positions with the conservation department, including that of U. P. regional supervisor directing game law enforcement and forest fire control work.

So for 32 years he has served the state and public in conservation work—and as one of the younger officers said the other day: "He can look over as much land in a day as we can."

In the early days the game law violator traveled slow—but so did the game warden. Vizena recalls how he used to go by train to an area where poaching was reported, there to hire a horse and buggy or strike out on foot into the woods. Roads were few and difficult. When the poachers went out to get venison in those days they made a weekend trip of it, with a pair of draft horses hitched to a wagon.

But if travel was slow, the methods of poaching were about the same in principle. There were the headlights, the rifles, and the deer. There was darkness in which to elude the game warden.

Many of fiercer Vizena's experiences as he recounts them are on the humorous side.

There was the case of the hidden venison, when the officers armed with a search warrant had looked over premises of a suspected poacher without avail. Jack Vizena has a tender spot in his heart for children, and the youngsters respond with their confidence. At this place in particular (and this was many years ago) Vizena was tagged by a little boy, son of the poacher, who followed him around the farmyard.

"Well, sonny, where do you keep the venison around here?" Vizena asked the boy, by way of conversation. He was dumfounded when the lad came right back with:

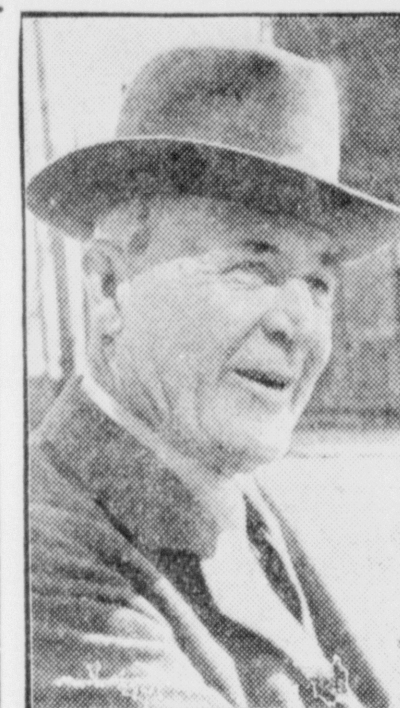

"It's right over there in the well, mister."

Thinking back on that incident now, Vizena says that he still regrets asking a question to which he had not expected to receive a reply.

Conservation officers say that nowadays the illegal venison isn't found in a well anymore. It's usually stored away in home cold storage plants in city basements. That's part of the changing times.

Courts and public opinion have changed since the early days, too. Vizena recalls that in one case over in the eastern Upper Peninsula the officers brought in two poachers with a deer. The local justice of the peace, more inclined to chewing cut plug than to a study of the law, heard the respondents plead not guilty and scratched his head. Three local men present were told they were the jury and the "trial" began.

At its conclusion the jury

popped out of a very short huddle. "Well, boys, what's the dope?" asked the justice, spitting in a corner.

"They didn't do it," reported the jury, with a glance at the carcass of the deer.

"All right, you heard it—the trial's over," said the judge and spit decisively.

The life of the early-day game warden wasn't one of amusing incidents. Far from it. It took long hours of work, long days spent in the woods to apprehend poachers and the officers at that time didn't find anything funny in such trials. Looking back on it now, Vizena gets a laugh out of it.

Then too there was the days spent searching for lost hunters, sometimes to have the search end in gruesome tragedy. Vizena recalls the novice hunter who started in on a trail to his camp, shod only in light shoes. That night the man became lost and it snowed.

The search continued for ten days. Then in a burning where blackened limbs of trees poked skeleton fingers into the sky they found the body—a snow-covered heap. One of his shoes was gone, and in his mad chase the lost man had run into one of the tree stubs gouged out one of his eyes.

What's the big change in game law enforcement? Officer Vizena says it's speed—speed both on the part of the poacher in his high-powered car, and the conservation officers in their radio equipped patrol cars. Generally, however, both the public and the courts are upholding the state in its conservation program.

GAME CHARGE DENIED HERE

Charles Johnston Pleads Not Guilty; Officers Find Dead Fawn

Charles Johnston of Escanaba yesterday afternoon pleaded not guilty in Justice Henry E. Ranguette's court to a charge of carrying a loaded rifle in his car. Counsel for Johnston asked that the case be continued pending the official filing in Alger county of a complaint against Johnston, charging him with killing a deer illegally.

Johnston's counsel said that he understood conservation officers were to make such a complaint, and he asked continuance of the case here—meanwhile, Johnston was released on his own recognizance.

Escanaba police arrested Johnston in Escanaba at 9:25 a. m. yesterday at the request of D. H. Raess, district conservation supervisor, and turned him over to conservation officers.

Conservation officers said that in Johnston's car they found a .32 caliber rifle. There were three shells in it. One was in the barrel, they said.

Conservation Officer Julius Thorson of Munising said that at 9 a. m. yesterday he radioed conservation headquarters in Escanaba to apprehend the driver of a car bearing license plate MX-1672. Officer Thorson at that time was near Tie Hill, just over the county line in Alger county on Federal Forest Highway No. 13, which runs north to Munising from Nahma Junction.

Officer Thorson said that he and Victor Russi, U. S. Forest Service towerman at the Tie Hill fire tower, had found a dead spotted fawn near the road. It had been shot, cleaned and dragged out of the woods.

The license number of the car was obtained by Towerman Russi, who told Thorson he had assisted two women in a car bearing that license to get on the road after the car became stuck when they were turning it around. Earlier from his tower Russi had heard a shot fired, conservation officers said he told them.
